McNamara—Fog Remains

BY FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says major U.S. defense policies are clearly defined for the man who will succeed Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, quitting the Pentagon for the World Bank's presidency.
But a triple play of announcements by the World Bank, White House and McNamara Wednesday night left in a fog some of the more intriguing aspects of the defense chief's switch in assignments. The statements reported:
Budget Work First
—McNamara will take over the presidency of the 107-nation World Bank after he finishes his work on the fiscal 1969 defense budget next year, probably sometime in February or shortly after.
—President Johnson maintained "the course of our participation in the war in Vietnam is firmly set, major defense policies are clearly defined" and McNamara's successor—not yet named—can carry on in McNamara's tracks "without loss of momentum or effectiveness."

—Outgoing President George D. Woods of the World Bank sounded out McNamara last April 18. McNamara indicated his interest in the post. He discussed it with Johnson, offering to stay at the Pentagon "as long as he felt it necessary."
—About mid-October, Johnson asked McNamara if he still was interested. Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler had prodded Johnson for the U.S. nomination for the World Bank presidency.
—McNamara told Johnson he was still interested. The nomination went forward to the bank. Its 20 executive directors voted unanimously Wednesday night to offer the $40,000-a-year job to McNamara, after the French representative reportedly delayed to check with Paris. A delegation headed by Woods called on McNamara at the Pentagon.

Lauded in Statement
The White House statement, issued under Johnson's name, called McNamara a "great administrator of the defense establishment... wise, resourceful, prudent" and said, "I shall miss him greatly."
McNamara's statement described the defense chief as "profoundly grateful to the President for his unflinching support and friendship."
But neither formal statement did much to confirm or dispel speculation that McNamara was being thrown to the Vietnam war hawks—that he is being eased out because Johnson reportedly is siding more and more with the military chiefs.

There was only one brief reference to Vietnam in both statements. This was Johnson's line saying the course of U.S. participation in the war is firmly set.
A White House aide said it was fair to assume Johnson's aim was to counter allegations that McNamara's departure will signal a major escalation of the bombing offensive.
No Clarification
Arthur Schlesinger, onetime aide to President John F. Kennedy, said in Upper Montclair, N.J., that McNamara's departure is "ominous."
McNamara's statement said he had worked with Johnson "in complete harmony and with the highest regard." This may have been intended to scotch rumors of disagreement between the two men.
But reporters were rebuffed in attempts to gain clarification.

GI Force 'Bait' To Repel Reds

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers reported killing 130 North Vietnamese in a new battle near Dak To Wednesday while American forces flown in as bait repelled an attack by Viet Cong and Communist regulars today near the U.S. Special Forces camp at Bu Dop. American firepower stopped the Red assault in a cemetery 50 yards from the U.S. lines.
Six-Hour Battle
About 800 government paratroopers fought elements of the 24th North Vietnamese regiment for six hours during a sweep operation six miles northeast of Dak To, the central highlands battleground where the costliest battle of the war ended last week. South Vietnamese casualties were reported light.
The victorious government battalions were the same units which seized Hill 1416 near Dak To during the bloody campaign to drive the North Vietnamese from strategic heights in the area. In that three-day battle, the South Vietnamese said they killed 256 of the enemy.
At Bu Dop, 80 miles north of Saigon, the enemy ran afoul of a battalion from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division. It had been flown in Wednesday after a mortar attack on the Special Forces camp and a ground assault on a South Vietnamese district headquarters compound at Bo Duc, 10 miles to the north, indicated a major battle might be in the offing.

Associated Press correspondent John Wheeler reported from Bu Dop that U.S. commanders sent the infantrymen in as bait, hoping to entice an enemy attack that would be vulnerable to the superior firepower from U.S. artillery and planes. This was the formula that gave the enemy heavy losses at nearby Loc Ninh earlier this month.
Wheeler said 20 enemy bodies were found on the battlefield after the Communists retreated at daylight, and one wounded man was captured. He said many blood trails also were found, indicating the enemy dragged away a large number of dead or wounded.
Seven Americans were killed and 13 wounded, Wheeler reported.
On Tuesday night the pattern was an enemy ground attack at Bo Duc and a mortar attack on Bu Dop. Wednesday night it was reversed. While the Americans were beating off the enemy, Communist mortars hurled more than 200 mortar rounds at government positions near the district headquarters.
The defenders reported only light casualties and said the district headquarters was not touched. Part of the compound had been overrun during the earlier attack, with 15 South Vietnamese and 65 Viet Cong reported killed.
Rains Restrict Strikes
In the air war, monsoon rains restricted nearly all U.S. air strikes over North Vietnam Wednesday to the southern half of the country from south of Hanoi to the 17th parallel.
However, Navy pilots returned to the Haiphong area for the second day in succession, bombing fuel storage dumps 7 and 11 miles west-northwest of the port city. Smoke and dust prevented an immediate assessment of damage, the Navy said.
The Navy also reported that one of its river patrol boats intercepted a large, motorized sampan 84 miles south-southwest of Saigon Tuesday and after an exchange of fire seized 150 pounds of medicines, 310 rounds

'Moral Crisis'--Eugene in Race

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota intends to hoist his banner of Vietnam policy dissent in at least four Democratic presidential primaries next year.

McCarthy announced formally today his intention to challenge President Johnson for the 1968 Democratic nomination for the White House.
His announced aim: To force a shift in U.S. policy in the Vietnam war.
"There is growing evidence of a deepening moral crisis in America," the Minnesota Democrat told a crowded news conference.
McCarthy said that his target list includes the primaries in Wisconsin on April 2, Nebraska on May 14, Oregon on May 28 and California June 4.
He lists two other primaries as questionable, regarding his entry—the opening race in New Hampshire on March 12, and the April 30 balloting in Massachusetts.
Actually, the races in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon are automatic for a presidential contender because state election laws in those states require that all candidates, in both parties, be listed on the ballot.
McCarthy hopes to gain a significant vote against Johnson in Wisconsin, acknowledges he may have little success in Nebraska, expresses belief he can do well in Oregon.
That leaves the final contest in California, a crucial one in McCarthy's view. He hopes to secure the support of the dissident California Democratic Council for his effort there.
McCarthy acknowledges the task of wresting the nomination from an incumbent President is virtually impossible. But he wants as a vice presidential running mate in the 1964 election.

must conduct a campaign delicate over Vietnam policy.
Should McCarthy enter the New Hampshire or Massachusetts contest, he would be likely to face stand-in Democrats running in Johnson's behalf.
That was the strategy used by the White House in 1964 against the primary challenge of former then-Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.
In New Hampshire, the administration stand-in could be Gov. John W. King or Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre.
And there have been reports the White House might turn to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for Massachusetts assistance.
The role McCarthy has chosen is an ironic one, for the 51-year-old Democrat was among the men Johnson hinted he might virtually impossible. But he wants as a vice presidential running mate in the 1964 election.

McCarthy clearly would have liked the job and a brochure he put out at the time included this quote about him from Johnson: "He's the kind of a man—as we say in the ranch country of Texas—who will go to the well with you."
The vice presidential nomination went, of course, to McCarthy's Minnesota colleague, Hubert H. Humphrey.

Meat: Ritual Slaughter Controversy Simmers

By LYNN MULVANEY
While the clamor for clean meat continues, another and allied controversy has been simmering for years — so-called inhumane treatment of animals before and during slaughter.
Even the most casual reader can't help but be shocked when he reads descriptions of shackling, hoisting and cutting the animal while it is upside down and is still conscious. The reader revolts at the thought of a plier with an iron hook at either end being inserted in the animal's nostril in order that he may be secured. He sickens as he pictures the animal's nostril sometimes being torn away or when more than one cut of the knife is needed for the kill.
Judaism requires "ritual" slaughter. Meat is simply not kosher unless it has been derived from an animal conscious at the time it is slain.
Assembly Line
"Hoisting and shackling is not our doing," says Kingston's Rabbi H. Z. Rappaport of Congregation Agudas Achim. "It is the demon of assembly line production." An expert on the subject and the author of a book which took eight years of research, Dr. Rappaport, nevertheless, contends that "there is documentation upon documentation that ritual slaughter is as humane as any other."
He cites the fact that the federal government demands humane slaughter and at the same time sanctions kosher slaughtering.
For the observant Jew to have it otherwise would be in violation of tradition that goes back to Talmudic times.
Who then is objecting? The non-Kosher meat eater?
Yes, because up to 70 per cent of the meat emanating from Jewish slaughter is thrown on the non-Kosher market. In New York City, it is reported to be virtually impossible to buy other than ritually slaughtered meat with the exception of pork.
Reasons
The reasons are many:
• Fifty per cent of the animal (the hindquarter) is not eaten by observant Jews. The only instance when it is allowable is when it has been deined and deining is prohibitive because of the high cost of labor.

• Animals injured upon receipt at the slaughterhouse are not acceptable to the Kosher trade. Many sustain injury in transit.
• When the shochet (the ritual slaughterer who in Jewish life is looked upon as having a sacred profession) fails to sever the carotid artery in a single stroke, the meat is declared non-Kosher.
• When a nick is found in the knife, the meat is declared unfit for the orthodox.
Open opponents of the conscious slaughter advocate rendering the animal unconscious by means of a stunning gun, or carbon dioxide. They also maintain when such methods are used, the animals that are next in line to be slaughtered are much less agitated than those "exposed to pain-filled bawling and moaning and squealing of their fellow creatures who are being slaughtered."
Slaughter Reform
Friends of Animals Inc. which has been working for slaughter reform for 12 years and the Committee for Humane Legislation, both of New York, are presently waging war anew, especially since meat has become common conversation lately.
They are heartily supporting the HALE Bill which provides that only packers who kill under "humane" slaughter can sell non-Kosher meat in New York.
The Hale Bill offers to ensure the right of each citizen to purchase meat slaughtered in accordance with his belief. It asks that all meat sold for human consumption, not designated as Kosher, shall be the product of modern slaughter.
Twelve Jewish organizations, some orthodox, some reform, others conservative, term it a "pernicious" piece of legislation and a grave threat to the freedom of conscience of observant Jews.
Referring to the Talmud, Dr. Rappaport says it is important to know that the animal is alive and well when it is slaughtered. The Talmud says the animal shall be killed with as little pain as possible, he explains.
He tells, too, of the economics involved. Kosher meat is higher priced than non-

Resnick Letter Bares Air Grant

By LYNN MULVANEY
A letter claiming that the county health department has had authorization to spend an $11,300 grant for local air pollution since Oct. 1, has been sent by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick's office to the Citizen's Committee for Clean Air.
It will probably come as a surprise to the committee, in view of the fact that Harry Edinger, director of environmental sanitation for the Health Department told the group at an Oct. 25 meeting that his department has not received the federal appropriation and was "waiting."
Edinger, who is out of town today, was not available for comment on Resnick's latest charge.
Resnick's office maintains that the Health Department was authorized to spend the money, to which the county is to add an additional $4,000 between Oct. 1 and the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1968.
The grant, which is reimbursable by the federal government, is designated for testing possible air polluting facilities and expediting the identification of sources in order that abatement may be obtained through the courts if necessary.
In the past it has been recognized that there has not been sufficient technical proof of pollution. The grant, according to Resnick's office will provide funds for providing that proof.
At the Oct. 26 meeting, to which Edinger had been invited, he told the committee that the local Health Department is limited as to funds and especially in the area of skilled personnel to handle such a specialized field.
Asked why Ulster County had not received a federal appropriation of a grant-in-aid, promised for last April and.

South Vietnamese casualties for the week were 361 killed, 66 wounded and 25 missing. Like those for the Americans, they were slightly less the week before.

U.S. headquarters, in another of its periodic summaries of American aircraft losses, said a total of 758 U.S. combat planes have been lost over North Vietnam.

Seven Refuse to Report for Induction

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP)—Two chaplains and a professor at Cornell University headed a group of seven persons who announced Wednesday they would refuse to report for military service in the event they were drafted.

Were Reclassified

The seven, including three students and a university employee, all had been reclassified

1-A delinquent by their draft boards since they turned in their draft cards during an anti-Vietnam war demonstration last month.

The Rev. Paul E. Gibbons, 34, Protestant chaplain at Cornell, and his Roman Catholic counterpart, the Rev. David W. Connor, 30, previously had been classified 4-D, the normal classification for clergymen. Most of the others also held deferred status.

The Rev. Mr. Gibbons, flanked by the others, announced their position at a campus news conference.

He said "we will refuse, in love, to go into this war or to accept alternative service, or enter the chaplaincy if called, since all such actions imply support of this war and the system which prevents men from conscientiously objecting on moral grounds."

Others in the group were

James Matlack, 29, an assistant professor of English at the university, Nathaniel W. Pierce, 25, of Brookline, Mass., program director of the Student Commons, Daniel Casner, 20, an Ithaca College student formerly of the Bronx, and two Cornell students, Steven Zimmerman of Oak Park, Ill., and Lawrence F. Kramer of Yonkers.

They said they returned their draft cards "as an expression of love for our country and concern for, in sympathy with, our soldiers."

The Rev. Mr. Gibbons said that any appeals of their new status were up to the individuals "but, should it come to the point of being called for induction, we will not go."

He said they would try to organize another national draft resistance week, beginning December 4, to give other men the opportunity to return their draft cards.

Peace Corps Exams Slated

Kingston area residents interested in putting their skills to use in developing nations around the world are invited to take the Peace Corps Placement Test at 3 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 4 at the Main Post Office, Cornell Street and Smith Avenue.

Volunteers need not have a college degree, as a broad range of skills are needed to fill the overseas program in agriculture, public health, community development, education and cooperative development.

The Placement Test, which takes about an hour and a half, determines how an applicant can best be utilized overseas. It measures general aptitude and ability to learn a language, not education or present knowledge of a foreign language. The test requires no preparation and is non-competitive — an applicant can neither pass nor fail.

Persons interested in serving in the Peace Corps must fill out an application, if they have not already done so, and present it to the tester before taking the test. Applications may be obtained from local post offices or from the Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

Two Chaplains, Prof Seven Refuse to Report for Induction

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP)—Two chaplains and a professor at Cornell University headed a group of seven persons who announced Wednesday they would refuse to report for military service in the event they were drafted.

The seven, including three students and a university employee, all had been reclassified I-A delinquent by their draft boards since they turned in their draft cards during an anti-Vietnam war demonstration last month.

The Rev. Paul E. Gibbons, 34, Protestant chaplain at Cornell, and his Roman Catholic counterpart, the Rev. David W. Connor, 30, previously had been classified 4-D, the normal classification for clergymen. Most of the others also held deferred status.

Fleeing Reds Carry Dead

Assault Dies at Cross

Editor's Note: When the Communists hit a South Vietnamese headquarters near the Bu Dop special forces camp early Wednesday, commanders of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division sensed a major battle might be in the offing and flew in a battalion as bait. Associated Press correspondent John T. Wheeler and photographer Horst Faas went along.

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
BU DOP, Vietnam (AP) — Backed by big artillery rockets and heavy mortars, a large Communist force attempted Wednesday night to overrun a battalion from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division staked out as bait. The Communist assault died at a big concrete cross in a Roman Catholic cemetery 50 yards from the American lines.

Using tactics that have cost them dearly this year in fighting north of Saigon, the Communists attempted again to overwhelm well dug-in American positions but American infantrymen, artillery and air power hurled them back and inflicted heavy casualties.

Seven Yanks Killed
Twenty enemy bodies were found on the battlefield, and one wounded man was captured. But the fleeing Reds carried away many more dead.

Seven Americans were killed and 13 were wounded. One 122mm enemy rocket scored a direct hit on an American bunker, killing the three men inside and burying them under five feet of dirt.

A mortar crew fighting valiantly in the open was wiped out by a direct hit.

The attack came at 10 p.m. as many Americans slept in the open while their comrades kept watch. The first salvo of 122mm rockets sent men scrambling for their sandbagged bunkers. Mortars and antitank rockets began dropping in, making bright orange-yellow flashes in the night and spewing thousands of pieces of shrapnel.

"Doc! Doc! Hey, where's the medic?" a man called as he dodged among the bunkers. Moments later machine guns added the president, who had began spraying the American positions.

A mortar round hit a rubber gasoline storage dump set up for helicopters and a sheet of flame shot several hundred feet into the air. The fiery tails of Communist rockets arched through the night sky.

Ground fire intensified as the enemy massed for a ground attack. Antitank rockets were launched at the forward American bunkers but failed to knock any out.

More firing touched off another part of the gasoline dump. American artillery fired point-blank into the edge of a rubber plantation 100 yards away where the Communists were massing. Helicopter gunships with machine guns and rockets joined the fighting at 10:38 p.m., but the enemy mortar and machine gun fire continued without letup.

Check on Buddies
The U.S. artillery was exploding so close to the American positions that bits of shrapnel fell within the lines.

Men called to neighboring bunkers to check on their buddies. Calls to the northeast corner bunker went unanswered. It was the one wiped out by a 122mm rocket.

A necklace of flares dropped by Air Force planes allowed the infantrymen on both sides to aim their weapons accurately. At the battalion aid station, the battle to save lives was under way.

See Makarios Blocking Greek-Turkish Agreement

ATHENS (AP) — President Makarios of Cyprus appeared today to be blocking a Greek-Turkish agreement to avert war over his island nation as U.S. envoy Cyrus Vance flew back to Athens from Nicosia.

Diplomatic sources had reported earlier that Greece and Turkey were ready to announce a settlement ending Turkey's threat to invade the island 40 miles off Turkey's southern coast.

"Our efforts for peace met with success," said Secretary-General Manlio Brosio of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, who with Vance and Jose Rolz Bennett of the United Nations has been shuttling back and forth between Ankara and Athens.

Vance had flown to Nicosia before dawn Wednesday, reportedly to get a quick yes or no from Makarios on the proposals. But it was early today before he emerged from meetings with the leader of the island's Greek Cypriot majority.

"I have had informative and constructive discussions with Archbishop Makarios and that is all I have to say," Vance told newsmen.

"I endorse that statement," Moments later machine guns added the president, who had been reported objecting to keep demands made by the Turks.

Smiles on the faces of the two men plus Vance's cautiously positive statement seemed to indicate a feeling that the Cypriot president's objections could be worked out.

Last-Minute Administration Push Fails to Get Tax Measure Rolling

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are no signs the Johnson administration's last-minute push for quick enactment of a tax boost has started the measure rolling through Congress.

"Psychologically the need is to do something and do it fast," Chairman William McClesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board told the House Ways and Means Committee.

But at the opening hearing Wednesday no committee member said anything that challenged Chairman Wilbur D. Mills' pronouncement that passage of a tax measure before Congress adjourns for 1967 would be impossible.

Two Disagree
Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, one of the few committee members who has publicly spoken of the need to raise taxes to reduce the federal deficit, asked Budget Director Charles L. Schultz whether it would not be wise to wait until the time for drawing up the new budget—probably late January—before deciding on a tax increase.

Schultz disagreed, as did Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler.

Fowler told Vanik, who had suggested Americans might resent a tax increase justified largely by effects of devaluing the British pound, "This is not a passing situation. For months we have been urging the need of a tax increase."

Several members focused on Schultz's testimony that the prospective deficit, which had been forecast at up to $29 billion—and which President Johnson at one point said might reach $35 billion—is now calculated at $22.5 billion.

Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., asked whether as large a tax increase is needed in view of a smaller deficit. The administration witnesses stuck to their recommendations.

These, identical with those Johnson made in August, are for a 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes, retroactive to July 1 for corporations and Oct. 1 for individuals. There would also be a speedup in corporate tax collections while the lowering of some excise taxes would be postponed.

$7.4 Billion YIELD
The package is estimated to yield $7.4 billion, of which $6.3 billion would come from the income surcharge.

Fowler told Burke that a 6 per cent surcharge effective Jan. 1 would yield only $2 billion during the fiscal year ending June 30—the one presenting the immediate deficit threat.

A Kingston woman was ticketed by police yesterday following an accident at the intersection of Downs Street and Bruyn Avenue where she told officials her brakes had failed.

Last-Minute Administration Push Fails to Get Tax Measure Rolling

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are no signs the Johnson administration's last-minute push for quick enactment of a tax boost has started the measure rolling through Congress.

"Psychologically the need is to do something and do it fast," Chairman William McCleskey Martin of the Federal Reserve Board told the House Ways and Means Committee.

But at the opening hearing Wednesday no committee member said anything that challenged Chairman Wilbur D. Mills' pronouncement that passage of a tax measure before Congress adjourns for 1967 would be impossible.

Two Disagree

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, one of the few committee members who has publicly spoken of the need to raise taxes to reduce the federal deficit, asked Budget Director Charles L.

Schultz whether it would not be wise to wait until the time for drawing up the new budget—probably late January—before deciding on a tax increase.

Schultz disagreed, as did Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler.

Fowler told Vanik, who had suggested Americans might resist a tax increase justified largely by effects of devaluing the British pound, "This is not a passing situation. For months we have been urging the need of a tax increase."

Several members focused on Schultz's testimony that the prospective deficit, which had been forecast at up to $29 billion—and which President Johnson at one point said might reach $35 billion—is now calculated at $22.5 billion.

Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., asked whether as large a tax increase is needed in view of a smaller deficit. The administration witnesses stuck to their recommendations.

These, identical with those Johnson made in August, are for a 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes, retroactive to July 1 for corporations and Oct. 1 for individuals. There would also be a speedup in corporate tax collections while the lowering of some excise taxes would be postponed.

$7.4 Billion Y-Yield

The package is estimated to yield $7.4 billion, of which $6.3 billion would come from the income surcharge.

Fowler told Burke that a 6 per cent surcharge effective Jan. 1 would yield only $2 billion during the fiscal year ending June 30—the one presenting the immediate deficit threat.

The administration package also includes spending limits, to be written into law, estimated to require departments to economize by more than $4 billion this year.

Woman Ticketed After City Crash

A Kingston woman was ticketed by police yesterday following an accident at the intersection of Downs Street and Bruyn Avenue where she told officials her brakes had failed.

Anna M. Guido of 128 O'Neil Street was summoned for inadequate brakes. Police said there were no reported injuries from the mishap.

According to authorities, the Guido woman was traveling along Bruyn Avenue when she attempted to halt for a STOP sign. Brakes failing, she rammed into a car operated by Charles DeCicco of West Park, police declared.

Mrs. Guido is slated to appear in court Friday.

Demolition Resumes

The new Kingston Urban Renewal Agency has taken a step in the right direction in the assignment of an on-site inspector for the resumption of demolition of buildings in the Broadway East Urban Renewal project.

We now can expect that buildings will be completely and thoroughly demolished, sites cleared, foundations filled in and sidewalks made passable in the work area. This phase of the urban renewal project downtown together with the relocation of displaced persons caused the dispute which resulted in serious delay in the implementation of the urban renewal program in this city.

If downtown is to survive and the city progress, we must see to it that this project proceeds without interruption. The rehashing of past problems will get us nowhere. The problems of Kingston are in the future, not in the past. The downtown redevelopment will do much to enhance the entire community.

For the past six months, the downtown section of the city has remained in a deplorable state with buildings half knocked down and with no one seemingly giving a thought to the essential purpose of urban renewal. The redevelopment of an area which will provide decent living quarters at a cost unfortunate citizens can afford is the reason for this government program. Other functions are the promotion of business and business opportunities in the area and the furnishing of adequate municipal services.

Everyone interested in Kingston's future should get behind the local Urban Renewal Agency so that some day we may see this vital job finished.

Driving-Fine Explosion

Drivers used to $1 fines for overtime parking had better stay away from New York City. Beginning Dec. 1, fines for illegal parking there, which now cost $15, will go to $25; and those of $5 for overtime parking will go to $15. A list of 30 traffic infractions all will cost $10 more.

The increased fines are part of a campaign to end illegal parking in the city and traffic congestion which results from it. It began with police towing away illegally parked cars to the river wharves, with drivers charged $35 for the cost of the tow, plus the fine involved. Close to 2,000 cars are dragged away each week. From the first of the year to Thanksgiving, a total of 79,765 were towed away. But violations continued.

The new fine system, it is hoped, will further speed the traffic flow throughout the city by bringing home to violators police determination to prevent illegal parking. A list of 30 offenses are listed, with the higher fine for each, to discourage people from such infractions as blocked vision, backing into an intersection or over crosswalk, defective or no lights, reflectors, steering, muffler, signal device, warning device, windshield wipers or mirrors.

Movement violations include driving on sidewalk, failure to signal, improper turn, leaving key in ignition, failure to keep in lane except where double line, wrong direction on one-way street, retarding traffic, and many others. The list should say to out-of-towners: it's cheaper to leave your car home than to drive to the big city.

Patrick O'Neal, the actor, is fighting to preserve the right to call his bar a saloon, a designation the New York State Liquor Authority branded as "repugnant." O'Neal argues that in New York today a saloon is a drinking place frequented by "moderately wealthy persons of excellent education, interested in literature and the arts." The courts may have to pass on his definition.

Careful Study Needed

Fast on the heel of the recommendation by the National Advisory Commission on Health Manpower for prepaid health care, Governor Rockefeller called for a compulsory national health insurance program. He figured it would cost employers and employees in his state $160 million a year each. Figuring the cost to the rest of the country at ten to eleven times, that would mean an added tax of $1.5 to $2 billion a year each for workers and employers.

Rockefeller did not think that national health insurance would fully replace Medicare for the aged or Medicaid for the indigent. Medicare is financed by social Security funds, Medicaid by Congressional appropriations. Compulsory health insurance, he said, would give the patient freedom to choose his doctor rather than go through the red tape of Medicaid. Both Medicare and Medicaid would be only needed in "catastrophic cases" in which prolonged illness had exhausted the insurance coverage.

With the backing of the President's commission and Rockefeller, compulsory health insurance is a step further. But it needs to be very carefully studied as a new added tax on worker and employer alike, who would share the cost as they now do with Social Security.

"Now Is the Time for All Good Men to Come to the Aid of Their Country!"

David Lawrence Says

New Secretary Will Not Solve Problem

WASHINGTON—The resignation of Robert S. McNamara as secretary of defense and the appointment of a successor could mean more than a change in personnel. For a question of fundamental importance is at stake: Shall this enormous department of government which spends more than 70 billion dollars a year be operated by one man—a civilian without the training or knowledge of military affairs so essential to an understanding of the defense of the United States in a nuclear age?

Mr. McNamara is an efficient executive. He was president of the Ford Motor Company when appointed to take charge of the Department of Defense. In the almost seven years that he has been in that post, he has acted, however, not only as the administrative head of a big department of government but as the adviser of the President of the United States on military policy.

No matter how efficient a businessman the secretary may have been or how conscientiously he has devoted himself to his job, the fact remains that military science has not been his life work. Originally, there were three military departments—the Army, the Navy and the Air Force. When they were placed under a single department after World War II, Congress failed to give the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff their rightful position in the whole mechanism of national defense.

United States, Soviet Unite To Cool Off Cyprus Crisis

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. Turkey did not invade Cyprus and military conflict with Greece, another NATO member, was averted largely because of swift and decisive action by the United Nations. The reason why the UN acted effectively this time was primarily because Soviet Russia joined the United States in a plea to Turkey and Greece to pull back on the brink of war.

This was of historic significance. It emphasized again that Russia and the United States—in their own interests, of course—can exert jointly their influence for peace despite their differences over the war in Vietnam.

There is little doubt that the latest Cyprus crisis was deliberately sparked by Greece's arch terrorist, Gen. George Grivas, when his National Guardsmen killed 28 Turkish Cypriots. He was obviously encouraged by the Greek military junta which had hoped that even a minor nationalistic triumph in Cyprus would bolster its declining prestige in Athens.

But like Egypt's President Nasser, the Greek generals and colonels overplayed their hand and courted certain defeat by Turkey's overwhelmingly superior army.

This time the Ankara government decided to exercise its right granted by the Zurich Treaty of 1960 to protect the 120,000 Turks who represent a fourth of the Cyprus population.

What the Greek dictators also failed to realize was that the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff are expected to report to the President—their Commander-in-Chief—through the Secretary of Defense. They can go over the secretary's head to the President if they wish, but it isn't considered discreet to do so. As a consequence, when members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees find out that there are contradictory views within the defense department, it becomes necessary to undertake the lengthy and delicate process of congressional investigations before the President himself becomes acquainted with some of the differences between the military chiefs and the civilian officials.

When the Department of Defense was established in 1947, it was assumed that the custom which prevailed during World War I and World War II would be maintained. In both periods, the service chiefs of staff almost constantly sat at the elbow of the President of the United States. Whenever meetings with the President were necessary, they were at the White House. The civilian secretaries also attended, and had full opportunity to express themselves.

What is being overlooked today is that the situation during the "Cold War" has become virtually as important as it was during both world wars. Yet the President has been isolated at times and has learned only from the press some of the significant trends in the handling of defense problems.

Congress has the authority to amend existing laws to set up a direct relationship with the President for the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as well as of the civilian heads of the three armed services.

The Secretary of Defense, instead of being given the job of acting, in effect, as a deputy commander-in-chief, could much better serve the public interest by supervising the business and administrative transactions of the Defense Department, especially in connection with the award of contracts involving vast sums.

He should not be given the duty of deciding military policies in a world situation as complicated as that of today. The Vietnam War probably would have reached a decisive stage long before this if the civilian point of view had not been preponderant and if the military men had been given the right to wage the war along established lines—namely, to use maximum power at the outset in fighting an enemy. This becomes ever more important in today's world because "limited war"—which presupposes that nuclear weapons will not be used—has emerged as the principal means of maintaining peace.

Existing laws require theater commanders abroad to report to the President only through the Secretary of Defense. In a world war this could be found impractical.

The appointment of a new Secretary of Defense, therefore, solves only a part of the problem. For Congress has failed thus far to define the authority of the military chiefs and to give them direct contact at all times with their commander-in-chief.

an improvement in Soviet-Turkish relations. The demand for a rapprochement by Moscow and Ankara was further promoted by the conflict over Cyprus. Turkey considered that in her dispute with Greece she had not received adequate support from the United States and the NATO allies. Ankara apparently concluded that Russia was of primary importance for a solution of the Cyprus issue in her favor.

When Soviet premier Kossygin visited Turkey last year he made it clear that he supported Ankara's demand that Cyprus be partitioned between Greeks and Turks. He acknowledged the "existence of two national communities, the Greek and the Turkish, on the island" and the necessity of "observing their legal rights."

The United States and Russia are thus pursuing different aims in Cyprus. The Johnson administration is trying to prevent hostilities between two NATO members that could deal a staggering blow to the Atlantic Alliance.

The Russians, whose primary goal is to destroy NATO, believe that they have found in Turkey the weakest link in the Western alliance. Having abandoned Archbishop Makarios, they are now backing the Turks. But mindful of the setback they suffered in the Middle East, they are not encouraging them to fight.

UN specialists feel that if the United States and Russia continue their unprecedented cooperation, Greece and Turkey might this time be encouraged to reach some sort of an agreement on a course of action for Cyprus.

Drew Pearson Says Military Experts Disagree On Red Troops Infiltration

WASHINGTON — Behind the cautious optimism expressed by General William Westmoreland in his public reports on the progress of the Vietnam War there has been a smoldering dispute between his headquarters and the Pentagon over intelligence estimates.

Caught in the middle was Maj. Gen. Joseph Alexander McChristian, Westmoreland's former intelligence chief, who has now been transferred from Saigon to Fort Hood, Texas.

McChristian's estimates of communist infiltrations and recruitment were a constant source of annoyance to Secretary of Defense McNamara, who thought they were higher than they ought to be. He suspected the estimates might even have been deliberately inflated to justify Westmoreland's repeated requests for more manpower.

McNamara was anxious to avoid calling up the reserves or increasing the draft calls; therefore, he preferred to believe lower estimates of enemy strength. The Air Force also didn't like McChristian's figures, which implied that the bombing was hardly slowing down the infiltration.

Westmoreland, however, had a soldier's reluctance to underestimate enemy strength. It is always safer, he knew, to accept the maximum estimates.

Deficient Jungle Watching

Even at best, keeping watch on Viet Cong movements is extremely difficult. Trail watchers and sensory devices are used to measure the movement over the infiltration routes. But the Viet Cong can move an entire division through the dense jungle under the noses of our observers, who might not be able to detect any sign of a mass movement that passes within 1,500 yards of them.

Captured documents and prisoners also don't always give an accurate idea of enemy infiltration. North Vietnamese units, for example, often change their identification three or four times before they reach their assigned combat area in South Vietnam. Most of the prisoners are dull privates who can't keep up with all the changes.

Before the presence of a North Vietnamese unit is accepted as "confirmed," it must be reported by two independent sources. Thus, the infiltration of only a few hundred men is officially "confirmed" each month.

Westmoreland is obliged to rely upon estimates, based largely upon the count from our observation teams and electronic detectors. Intelligence specialists, who worked with McChristian, have told this column that his estimates were conservative. He insisted upon hard information.

tion and would never resort to guesswork in preparing his estimates. Privately, these specialists believe more North Vietnamese managed to infiltrate into the south than he ever counted.

Yet his infiltration estimates ranged around 10,000 a month in 1966, reached as high as 14,000 in June, 1966. He also estimated the Viet Cong recruitment in the south at around 7,500 a month.

Note—Whatever the correct figure, it's significant that in late 1964 before the United States bombing of the north, the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops south was estimated at 2,000 a month. The bombing was started Feb. 7, 1965, to stop this infiltration. Since then infiltration is estimated at a minimum of 5,000 to 6,000 a month and a maximum of 14,000.

Pressure on McChristian

There was subtle pressure on McChristian from the Pentagon to reduce his estimates, which he refused to do. He took more care, however, to back up his estimates with hard intelligence.

It is true that the number of "confirmed" infiltrators has dropped dramatically since 1966. One reason, however, is that North Vietnam has been sending down individual replacements rather than units. This makes it vastly more difficult to confirm from two sources the presence of a group of infiltrators.

Yet the "confirmed" rate is one of the factors that go into figuring the estimates. With McChristian in Texas, the "confirmed" count down and the captured enemy documents which tell of increased problems, infiltration estimates have dropped to 5,000 to 6,000 a month. The Viet Cong recruitment rate is also estimated around 3,600 a month, about half McChristian's previous figures.

Some intelligence experts believe McChristian, who has seized upon the lower figures, is deluding himself. On the other hand there is evidence that the Viet Cong are having trouble keeping up their strength.

Note: A year ago, the Viet Cong battalions were taking such a battering that most experts believed that they would be broken up into smaller, more elusive guerrilla bands. McChristian contended, however, that this would be such a major retreat that it would be an admission the Viet Cong believed they were losing. His appraisal has turned out to be correct.

Non Poverty Waste

While the House has been yelling about spending for the war on poverty, Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., points out that there has been no Congressional outcry about federal largesse in other areas —even when it goes down the drain.

Scheuer reminded Congress recently that in the last few years $4.5 billion of military hardware programs were abandoned, at a total loss. They included the Skybolt missile ($2 billion), Dynasoar glide bomber ($1 billion), manned aircraft propulsion ($1 billion), the PM6 minelaying seaplane ($450 million) and the Pluto project ($200 million).

"These were experimental programs and I am sure no House member would point the finger or guilt because of failure," said the New Yorker. "I would hope that there would be some comparable charity toward efforts to end poverty in our land."

"I am depressed by the empty defeatism of domestic doves who seek withdrawal from the poverty war in the face of an enemy whose battalions are composed of joblessness, hunger, illiteracy and desperation."

"Instead of poverty being the enemy, it appears to regard the poor as the enemy. I believe there ought to be more domestic hawks on the floor of this chamber—and I am proud to be one."

Noziger to Be Dropped

Unless premature publicity changes his plans, Gov. Ronald Reagan will announce the exit of his press secretary Lyn Noziger.

Noziger who has gone under the title "communications director" is the man who leaked the story of the two homosexuals on Reagan's staff who were dropped last August. Noziger told the circumstances under which they were dropped to several newspapermen aboard the S.S. Independence en route to the governor's conference in the Virgin Islands.

However, when Gov. Reagan issued his famous denial of the Pearson column on the homosexuals on Reagan's staff, Noziger confirmed this denial.

It was also aboard the S.S. Independence that Noziger and/or Reagan mysteriously got hold of the White House telegram to ex-Gov. Price Daniel aboard the Independence and give it wide publicity to newspapermen.

Congressman Joseph Resnick, D-N.Y., recently called for an investigation of how and why this telegram was intercepted and accused Reagan of violating the Communications Act.

It has become apparent in political circles that Gov. Reagan would have to provide a scapegoat for these two embarrassing incidents and he has now decided to fire Noziger.

It is reported that the governor is angling to take Travis Cross, public relations expert on the staff of George Romney away from Romney to serve in the governor's staff in California.

Dollar Stands Solitary and Alone

Much is unrevealed about the inside bang-bang that ended with the news that Britain has devalued the pound. In simple truth, Prime Minister Harold Wilson gave up the ghost against the judgment and protest of our Federal Reserve officials and the committed consortium of European central banks.

Behind the scenes at the New York-Washington end of the struggle, our Federal Reserve and Treasury chiefs were convinced that the pound could be saved, agreed to back it, and believed then and still believe that the results of Britain's act are far worse than the very hard salvation problem they were willing to face.

What we've really seen is the throat-cut of one throat of a Siamese twin.

The entire free world's postwar monetary system is founded on the exchange ratio of the U. S. dollar to the British pound and the convertibility of gold at today's fixed $35 price—a foundation French President Charles de Gaulle violently protests.

The ratio makes a Siamese twin out of the pound and dollar. And the fundamental basis for our vast expensive support of the pound with the American taxpayers' money has been Britain's absolute guarantee that she would not devalue her pound unilaterally. But that is what Britain did.

The Siamese twin has functioned in a vital way as a result—and only as a result—of the combined support of our Treasury and the splendidly cooperative consortium of European central banks.

Our British cousins not only use the pound among themselves as we use our dollar, but both—tied together —are the reserve currency used like an international currency by central banks throughout the free world. An estimated 70 per cent of Britain's pound supply is held by foreigners abroad, valued at the ratio interchange into U. S. dollars or gold.

Thus, the effect has been to make the defense of the pound and the defense of the dollar indivisible.

This indivisibility, and all British urgings to preserve it, weathered a great storm in November, 1964, by the support Britain sought in the consortium. In addition, Britain borrowed an emergency $1 billion from the International Monetary Fund. In May, 1965, she drew $1.4 billion more. And in a column as long ago as July 8, 1966, I pointed out that a new crisis was on the way (behind the scenes) and that Britain's true reserves supporting the pound had become, in fact, practically nil.

I quoted from Paris de Gaulle's financial confidant M. Jacques Rueff as tipping

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Nov. 30, 1947 — William Hermance, 86, one of Rosedale's oldest citizens, died.

County employees received a 10 per cent pay increase along with 12 paid holidays and three weeks paid vacation. Elected officials were not included.

Nov. 30, 1957 — Local Boy Scout Troop 4 was circulating a petition to Gov. Harriman to save Perrine's Bridge in Rifton.

A meeting was scheduled to formulate plans for the annual Business-Education Day of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

off de Gaulle's secret strategy by claiming we should pay $70 an ounce for gold and thus again devalue the U. S. dollar. Analyzing this, it meant that de Gaulle would set out to achieve enough of a corner on gold to let him ultimately force our dollar off its moorings.

The New Frontier-Great Society's financial irresponsibility by continued overspending at home and abroad provided this vulnerability, and although France still owes us $6.57 billion in adjusted debts—some so old they go back 27 years—we have allowed de Gaulle to give muscle to his war on our dollar by outrageously hammering away at our dwindling gold stock.

This stock reached its peak at $27.7 billion during the week ended September 21, 1949. We finally lost so much that today it is actually less than that of Europe's Common Market countries. Our reserves have gone down every year for 10 years while theirs have gone up. More than half the gold drainage through the international gold pool, from which France withdrew this June, comes from Fort Knox, and four days before the British devalued, our gold stock broke below $13 billion, another new 29-year low.

With the cutting of one throat of the Siamese twins, the dollar stands solitary and alone, further weakened by our colossal write-off in pounds.

Accordingly, there has been an enormous and relentless pressure on the gold market, as foreseen by our Federal Reserve-Treasury chiefs, and de Gaulle sits licking his chops.

His strategy would produce the French franc as a key currency and at the same time force a further watered-down U. S. dollar that would knock the American price level into a feverish climb, which is water on the wheel of every internal and external enemy of the United States.

From the first of the year to Thanksgiving, a total of 79,765 were towed away. But violations continued.

The new fine system, it is hoped, will further speed the traffic flow throughout the city by bringing home to violators police determination to prevent illegal parking. A list of 30 offenses are listed, with the higher fine for each, to discourage people from such infractions as blocked vision, backing into an intersection or over crosswalk, defective or no lights, reflectors, steering, muffler, signal device, warning device, windshield wipers or mirrors.

Movement violations include driving on sidewalk, failure to signal, improper turn, leaving key in ignition, failure to keep in lane except where double line, wrong direction on one-way street, retarding traffic, and many others. The list should say to out-of-towners: it's cheaper to leave your car home than to drive to the big city.

Patrick O'Neal, the actor, is fighting to preserve the right to call his bar a saloon, a designation the New York State Liquor Authority branded as "repugnant." O'Neal argues that in New York today a saloon is a drinking place frequented by "moderately wealthy persons of excellent education, interested in literature and the arts." The courts may have to pass on his definition.

Careful Study Needed

Fast on the heel of the recommendation by the National Advisory Commission on Health Manpower for prepaid health care, Governor Rockefeller called for a compulsory national health insurance program. He figured it would cost employers and employees in his state $160 million a year each. Figuring the cost to the rest of the country at ten to eleven times, that would mean an added tax of $1.5 to $2 billion a year each for workers and employers.

Rockefeller did not think that national health insurance would fully replace Medicare for the aged or Medicaid for the indigent. Medicare is financed by social Security funds, Medicaid by Congressional appropriations. Compulsory health insurance, he said, would give the patient freedom to choose his doctor rather than go through the red tape of Medicaid. Both Medicare and Medicaid would be only needed in "catastrophic cases" in which prolonged illness had exhausted the insurance coverage.

With the backing of the President's commission and Rockefeller, compulsory health insurance is a step further. But it needs to be very carefully studied as a new added tax on worker and employer alike, who would share the cost as they now do with Social Security.

New Secretary Will Not Solve Problem

WASHINGTON—The resignation of Robert S. McNamara as secretary of defense and the appointment of a successor could mean more than a change in personnel. For a question of fundamental importance is at stake: Shall this enormous department of government which spends more than 70 billion dollars a year be operated by one man—a civilian without the training or knowledge of military affairs so essential to an understanding of the defense of the United States in a nuclear age?

Mr. McNamara is an efficient executive. He was president of the Ford Motor Company when appointed to take charge of the Department of Defense. In the almost seven years that he has been in that post, he has acted, however, not only as the administrative head of a big department of government but as the adviser of the President of the United States on military policy.

No matter how efficient as a businessman the secretary may have been or how conscientiously he has devoted himself to his job, the fact remains that military science has not been his life work.

Originally there were three military departments—the Army, the Navy and the Air Force. When they were placed under a single department after World War II, Congress failed to give the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff their rightful position in the whole mechanism of national defense.

What is being overlooked today is that the situation during the "Cold War" has become virtually as important as it was during both world wars. Yet the President has been isolated at times and has learned only from the press some of the significant trends in the handling of defense problems.

Congress has the authority to amend existing laws to set up a direct relationship with the President for the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as well as of the civilian heads of the three armed services. The Secretary of Defense, instead of being given the job of acting, in effect, as a deputy commander-in-chief, could much better serve the public interest by supervising the business and administrative transactions of the Defense Department, especially in connection with the award of contracts involving vast sums. He should not be given the duty of deciding military policies in a world situation as complicated as that of today.

The Vietnam War probably would have reached a decisive stage long before this if the civilian point of view had not been preponderant and if the military men had been given the right to wage the war along established lines—namely, to use maximum power at the outset in fighting an enemy. This becomes ever more important in today's world because "limited war" which presupposes that nuclear weapons will not be used has emerged as the principal means of maintaining peace.

Existing laws require theater commanders abroad to report to the President only through the Secretary of Defense. In a world war this could be found impractical. The appointment of a new Secretary of Defense, therefore, solves only a part of the problem. For Congress has failed thus far to define the authority of the military chiefs and to give them direct contact at all times with their commander-in-chief.

United States, Soviet Unite To Cool Off Cyprus Crisis

By LEON DENNEN
NIA Foreign News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. Turkey did not invade Cyprus and military conflict with Greece, another NATO member, was averted largely because of swift and decisive action by the United Nations.

The reason why the UN acted effectively this time was primarily because Soviet Russia joined the United States in a plea to Turkey and Greece to pull back on the brink of war.

This was of historic significance. It emphasized again that Russia and the United States—in their own interests, of course—can exert jointly their influence for peace despite their differences over the war in Vietnam.

There is little doubt that the latest Cyprus crisis was deliberately sparked by Greece's arch terrorist, Gen. George Grivas, when his National Guardsmen killed 28 Turkish Cypriots. He was obviously encouraged by the Greek military junta which had hoped that even a minor nationalist triumph in Cyprus would bolster its declining prestige in Athens.

But like Egypt's President Nasser, the Greek generals and colonels overplayed their hand and courted certain defeat by Turkey's overwhelming superior army.

This time the Ankara government decided to exercise its right granted by the Zurich Treaty of 1960 to protect the 120,000 Turks who represent a fourth of the Cyprus population.

What the Greek dictators also failed to realize was that Soviet Russia's foreign policy has changed since the 1964 crisis when Moscow backed Cyprus' Greek president, Archbishop Makarios.

As long as they have Egypt's Nasser and the Syrian leftists on their necks—as long as the Middle Eastern problem remains unsolved—the Russians, it is clear, will not engage in any other military adventures in the Mediterranean. Nor have they much love for Greece's rightist junta.

But more important is the fact that Russia and Turkey, traditionally enemies, recently have decided to bury the hatchet. Particularly since the adoption of the new Turkish constitution in 1961, which guarantees complete freedom of expression, the left-wing Turkish press has been demanding even more insistently an improvement in Soviet-Turkish relations. The demand for a rapprochement by Moscow and Ankara was further promoted by the conflict over Cyprus.

Turkey considered that in her dispute with Greece she had not received adequate support from the United States and the NATO allies. Ankara apparently concluded that Russia was of primary importance for a solution of the Cyprus issue in her favor.

When Soviet premier Kosygin visited Turkey last year he made it clear that he supported Ankara's demand that Cyprus be partitioned between Greeks and Turks. He acknowledged the "existence of two national communities, the Greek and the Turkish, on the island" and the necessity of "observing their legal rights."

The United States and Russia are thus pursuing different aims in Cyprus. The Johnson administration is trying to prevent hostilities between two NATO members that could deal a staggering blow to the Atlantic Alliance.

The Russians, whose primary goal is to destroy NATO, believe that they have found in Turkey the weakest link in the Western alliance. Having abandoned Archbishop Makarios, they are now backing the Turks. But mindful of the setback they suffered in the Middle East, they are not encouraging them to fight.

UN specialists feel that if the United States and Russia continue their unprecedented cooperation, Greece and Turkey might this time be encouraged to reach some sort of an agreement on a course of action for Cyprus.

Drew Pearson Says Military Experts Disagree On Red Troops Infiltration

WASHINGTON — Behind the cautious optimism expressed by General William Westmoreland in his public reports on the progress of the Vietnam War there has been a smoldering dispute between his headquarters and the Pentagon over intelligence estimates.

Caught in the middle was Maj. Gen. Joseph Alexander McChristian, Westmoreland's former intelligence chief, who has now been transferred from Saigon to Fort Hood, Texas.

McChristian's estimates of communist infiltrations and recruitment were a constant source of annoyance to Secretary of Defense McNamara, who thought they were higher than they ought to be. He suspected the estimates might even have been deliberately inflated to justify Westmoreland's repeated requests for more manpower.

McNamara was anxious to avoid calling up the reserves or increasing the draft calls; therefore, he preferred to believe lower estimates of enemy strength. The Air Force also didn't like McChristian's figures, which implied that the bombing was hardly slowing down the infiltration.

Westmoreland, however, had a soldier's reluctance to underestimate enemy strength. It is always safer, he knew, to accept the maximum estimates.

Deficient Jungle Watching

Even at best, keeping watch on Viet Cong movements is extremely difficult. Trail watchers and sensory devices are used to measure the movement over the infiltration routes. But the Viet Cong can move an entire division through the dense jungle under the noses of our observers, who might not be able to detect any sign of a mass movement that passes within 1,500 yards of them.

Captured documents and prisoners also don't always give an accurate idea of enemy infiltration. North Vietnamese units, for example, often change their identification three or four times before they reach their assigned combat area in South Vietnam. Most of the prisoners are dull privates who can't keep up with all the changes.

Before the presence of a North Vietnamese unit is accepted as "confirmed," it must be reported by two independent sources. Thus, the infiltration of only a few hundred men is officially "confirmed" each month.

Westmoreland is obliged to rely upon estimates, based largely upon the count from our observation teams and electronic detectors. Intelligence specialists, who worked with McChristian, have told this column that his estimates were conservative. He insisted upon hard information and would never resort to guesswork in preparing his estimates. Privately, these specialists believe more North Vietnamese managed to infiltrate into the south than he ever counted.

Yet his infiltration estimates ranged around 10,000 a month in 1966, reached as high as 14,000 in June, 1966. He also estimated the Viet Cong recruitment in the south at around 7,500 a month.

Note—Whatever the correct figure, it's significant that in late 1964 before the United States bombing of the north, the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops south was estimated at 2,000 a month. The bombing was started Feb. 7, 1965, to stop this infiltration. Since then infiltration is estimated at a minimum of 5,000 to 6,000 a month and a maximum of 14,000.

Pressure on McChristian

There was subtle pressure on McChristian from the Pentagon to reduce his estimates, which he refused to do. He took more care, however, to back up his estimates with hard intelligence.

It is true that the number of "confirmed" infiltrators has dropped dramatically since 1966. One reason, however, is that North Vietnam has been sending down individual replacements rather than units. This makes it vastly more difficult to confirm from two sources the presence of a group of infiltrators.

Yet the "confirmed" rate is one of the factors that go into figuring the estimates. With McChristian in Texas, the "confirmed" countdown and the captured enemy documents which tell of increased problems, infiltration estimates have dropped to 5,000 to 6,000 a month. The Viet Cong recruitment rate is also estimated around 3,600 a month, about half McChristian's previous figures.

Some intelligence experts believe McChristian, who has seized upon the lower figures, is deluding himself. On the other hand there is evidence that the Viet Cong are having trouble keeping up their strength.

Note: A year ago, the Viet Cong battalions were taking such a battering that most experts believed that they would be broken up into smaller, more elusive guerrilla bands. McChristian countered, however, that this would be such a major retreat that it would be an admission the Viet Cong believed they were losing. His appraisal has turned out to be correct.

Non Poverty Waste

While the House has been yelling about spending for the war on poverty, Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., points out that there has been no Congressional outcry about federal largesse in other areas —even when it goes down the drain.

Scheuer reminded Congress recently that in the last few years $4.5 billion of military hardware programs were abandoned, at a total loss. They included the Skybolt missile ($2 billion), Dynasor glide bomber ($1 billion), manned aircraft propulsion ($1 billion), the PM6 minelaying seaplane ($450 million) and the Pluto project ($200 million).

"These were experimental programs and I am sure no House member would point the finger or guilt because of failure," said the New Yorker. "I would hope that there would be some comparable charity toward efforts to end poverty in our land."

"I am depressed by the empty defeatism of domestic doves who seek withdrawal from the poverty war in the face of an enemy whose battalions are composed of joblessness, hunger, illiteracy and desperation."

Instead of poverty being their enemy, they appear to regard the poor as the enemy. I believe there ought to be more domestic hawks on the floor of this chamber—and I am proud to be one."

Notzinger to Be Dropped

Unless premature publicity changes his plans, Gov. Ronald Reagan will announce the exit of his press secretary Lyn Notzinger.

Notzinger, who has gone under the title "communications director" is the man who leaked the story of the two homosexuals on Reagan's staff who were dropped last August. Notzinger told the circumstances under which they were dropped to several newspapermen aboard the S.S. Independence en route to the governor's conference in the Virgin Islands.

However, when Gov. Reagan issued his famous denial of the Pearson column on the homosexuals on Reagan's staff, Notzinger confirmed this denial.

It was also aboard the S.S. Independence that Notzinger and/or Reagan mysteriously got hold of the White House telegram to ex-Gov. Price Daniel aboard the Independence and gave it wide publicity to newspapermen.

Congressman Joseph Resnick, D-N.Y., recently called for an investigation of how and why this telegram was intercepted and accused Reagan of violating the Communications Act.

It has become apparent in political circles that Gov. Reagan would have to provide a scapegoat for these two embarrassing incidents and he has now decided to fire Notzinger.

It is reported that the governor is angling to take Travis Cross, public relations expert on the staff of George Romney away from Romney to serve in the governor's staff in California.

Dollar Stands Solitary and Alone

Much is unrevealed about the inside bang-bang that ended with the news that Britain has devalued the pound. In simple truth, Prime Minister Harold Wilson gave up the ghost against the judgment and protest of our Federal Reserve officials and the committed consortium of European central banks.

Behind the scenes at the New York-Washington end of the struggle, our Federal Reserve and Treasury chiefs were convinced that the pound could be saved, agreed to back it, and believed then and still believe that the results of Britain's act are far worse than the very hard salvation problem they were willing to face.

What we've really seen is the throat-cut of one throat of a Siamese twin.

The entire free world's postwar monetary system is founded on the exchange ratio of the U. S. dollar to the British pound and the convertibility of gold at today's fixed $35 price—a foundation French President Charles de Gaulle violently protests.

The ratio makes a Siamese twin out of the pound and dollar. And the fundamental basis for our vastly expensive support of the pound with the American taxpayers' money has been Britain's absolute guarantee that she would not devalue her pound unilaterally. But that is what Britain did.

The Siamese twin has functioned in a vital way as a result—and only as a result—of the combined support of our Treasury and the splendidly cooperative consortium of European central banks.

Our British cousins not only use the pound among themselves as we use our dollar, but both—tied together —are the reserve currency used like an international currency by central banks throughout the free world. An estimated 70 per cent of Britain's pound supply is held by foreigners abroad, valued at the ratio interchangeable into U. S. dollars or gold.

Thus, the effect has been to make the defense of the pound and the defense of the dollar indivisible.

This indivisibility, and all British urgings to preserve it, weathered a great storm in November, 1964, by the support Britain sought in the consortium. In addition, Britain borrowed an emergency $1 billion from the International Monetary Fund. In May, 1965, she drew $1.4 billion more. And in a column as long ago as July 8, 1966, I pointed out that a new crisis was on the way (behind the scenes) and that Britain's true reserves supporting the pound had become, in fact, practically nil.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Nov. 30, 1947 — William Hermance, 86, one of Rosendale's oldest citizens, died.

County employees received a 10 per cent pay increase along with 12 paid holidays and three weeks paid vacation. Elected officials were not included.

Nov. 30, 1957 — Local Boy Scout Troop 4 was circulating a petition to Gov. Harriman to save Perrine's Bridge in Rifton.

A meeting was scheduled to formulate plans for the annual Business-Education Day of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

off de Gaulle's secret strategy by claiming we should pay $70 an ounce for gold and thus again devalue the U. S. dollar. Analyzing this, it meant that de Gaulle would set out to achieve enough of a corner on gold to let him ultimately force our dollar off its moorings.

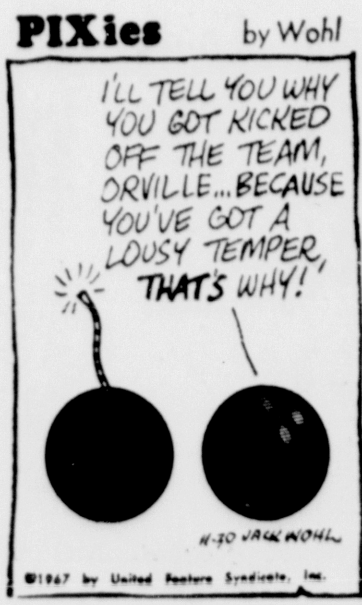

The New Frontier-Great Society's financial irresponsibility by continued overspending at home and abroad provided this vulnerability, and although France still owes us $6.57 billion in adjusted debts—some so old they go back 27 years—we have allowed de Gaulle to give muscle to his war on our dollar by outrageously hammering away at our dwindling gold stock.

This stock reached its peak at $27.7 billion during the week ended September 21, 1949. We finally lost so much that today it is actually less than that of Europe's Common Market countries. Our reserves have gone down every year for 10 years while theirs have gone up. More than half the gold drainage through the international gold pool, from which France withdrew this June, comes from Fort Knox, and four days before the British devalued, our gold stock broke below $13 billion, another new 29-year low.

With the cutting of one throat of the Siamese twins, the dollar stands solitary and alone, further weakened by our colossal write-off in pounds.

Accordingly, there has been an enormous and relentless pressure on the gold market, as foreseen by our Federal Reserve-Treasury chiefs, and de Gaulle sits licking his chops.

His strategy would produce the French franc as a key currency and at the same time force a further watering-down U. S. dollar that would knock the American price level into a feverish climb, which is water on the wheel of every internal and external enemy of the United States.

The Beat At City Hall

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

It looks like Ed Norton of the Seventh Ward will move into Bob Gallo's position as majority leader of the Common Council. T. Robert steps up to Frank Koenig's seat as alderman-at-large.

At this point, Norton appears to be the only serious contender for majority leader (the Democrats have an 8-5 edge, same as last Council). Pete Mancuso, alderman from the Eighth Ward and one of the biggest winners Election Day, has been mentioned for majority leader, but as we understand it, Pete isn't too keen on the idea.

Pete likes to vote the issue, a practice which occasionally puts him on the Republican side of the fence. He feels the majority leader is more or less the standard bearer for the party and would be more prone to vote down party lines. There is also the fact that Mancuso has never served on a major committee, there being two in the Council, Finance Ways and Means and Laws and Rules. Norton will undoubtedly retain his chairmanship of Laws and Rules but there is an opening on Finance Ways and Means. Gallo heads that committee but will have to vacate when he assumes the president's chair. It could be Mancuso's job if he wants it or possibly even Joe Epstein of the Sixth Ward.

Reapportionment time is drawing near, the plan for which is expected to be submitted as a local law to the Council at their December 5th meeting.

Biggest Fight

This could be the biggest fight in years. The basic premise for reapportioning, one vote for one man, is a good idea, but with 13 wards it's going to take a lot of juggling to make it work. Take the Fifth Ward where Joe Epstein was reelected by 5-0 margin. Back in 1961, the alderman race, 586 persons voted from the Fifth Ward. The reapportionment coming up to the council next week will be taken from those 1960 figures.

It just doesn't seem fair that Epstein, with 57 votes, has the same voting power in the Common Council as John Machione from the 12th Ward who polled more than 1,100 votes.

Mayor Garraghan and Corporation Counsel Aaron Klein are in minor disagreement over extra personnel for Klein's office. Garraghan wants a full-time law secretary to be shared by Klein and Bud Lyle, city clerk. Klein differs, saying he doesn't really need a full-time girl, in fact, would prefer some sort of an account where he could contract for legal help as the need arises.

Save Money

Klein thinks his idea would save the city money over the long haul and if only for that reason should find Garraghan receptive. The mayor is currently embroiled in the battle of the budget.

A word on that. Garraghan was soundly, if not foolishly, blasted for conflicting reports on just how much he expected the tax rate to be hiked for 1968.

The estimates range from $7 to $12. Garraghan's critics say he has confided to intimates that the figure will be more like $5. Garraghan's actions are being compared to an old Lyndon Johnson tactic of releasing a tremendously high budget figure and then "miraculously" bringing the budget in under that figure.

Some of Garraghan's critics never get near city hall but if they did they'd find out that the mayor, as of this date, has received almost no departmental requests. He bases his budget on those requests. Without them he's just guessing. One thing about Ray Garraghan, he doesn't play guessing games about money.

Return of Iwo Jima Stirs His Vivid Memories

By KEYES BEECH

Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

HONOLULU, Nov. 25—The news that the United States was going to give Iwo Jima back to the Japanese 22 years after we took it away from them was not the kind of stuff that makes page one banner headlines.

A tiny speck in the Pacific, 600 miles south of Tokyo, Iwo could hardly be less important. Nobody ever goes there any more. The total American military population is only 87 men—35 Coast Guardsmen who man a Loran navigational station, and 52 U. S. Air Force men who look after the airstrip and oil storage tanks in case some airborne airplane should make an emergency landing there.

But to a generation of now middle-aged Americans there was a time when Iwo was terribly important. It was, literally, a matter of life and death.

It seems incredible now, but nearly 5,000 Americans—17,272 were wounded—and 20,000 Japanese died for Iwo. They died for 7.8 square miles of black volcanic earth known as sulphur island.

Was it worth it? Was Dak To worth nearly 300 American dead?

I cannot speak for the men at Dak To. But perhaps I can speak for some of those who were at Iwo. Viewed from 20 years' hindsight, it probably wasn't worth it. But who was to say at the time that it wasn't?

A generation separates us from the men at Dak To, but I suspect those of us who were at Iwo had something in common with them. It never occurred to us to ask whether Iwo was worth the cost.

Maybe we were stupid. Maybe we just didn't know any better when we hit those black sand beaches. But I like to think that we did what we did because we were Americans. Because we had a job to do—just like those kids who went up those hills at Dak To. Nothing is more boring than another man's war. Anyone under 40 who has got this far can stop reading now.

They told us to take the bloody island and we took it. They told us to win the war and we won it. I know—nobody wins a war. But the United States would have been quite a different place if we had lost it.

For one thing, I doubt if there would have been quite as much dissent as there is today.

Iwo is as vivid to me today as the day it happened. I remember standing on the deck of the troop transport in the predawn darkness and watching the red flashes as the big Navy guns pounded the island.

There won't be a Jap left alive on that island," exulted a young Navy gunfire officer.

"The hell you say," I said. I was at Tarawa, where the Navy learned at the expense of Marine lives that naval gunfire to be effective must be pinpointed.

Then I was lying on the beach next to my regimental commander, Col. "Harry the Horse" Liversedge, a mountainous man now long dead.

"We can't just lie here," he grumbled as the earth exploded around us. I waited for him to move and then I moved. After all, he was the regimental commander, not I. I lay flat on my back in a shallow shell-hole with a typewriter on my stomach trying to write a story. A small brown and white dog came into my hole and licked my hand. He survived. The sergeant who was his master did not.

A big blond Marine walked into the aid station with half his jaw shot away. He tried to speak but could not. Then he tried to write in the sand. But as fast as his finger moved the shifting sand filled in what he had written. Disgusted, he stood up, ready to go.

My best friend was killed the next day when a mortar landed in the middle of our command post. I still remember his face. It was dirty. Then it began to rain and the raindrops made little white polka dots in his face. I choked up when he died. But he was only the first of my friends to die. After that I felt nothing. I couldn't afford to feel anything.

Flag On Suribachi
Mine was the 28th Regiment. We were a proud outfit. We were good and we knew it. We were so good they gave us the job of taking Mount Suribachi. They gave us 12 hours to do it. We took four days and nearly a thousand casualties.

We put the flag on top of Suribachi and Joe Rosenthal took the most famous picture of World War II. They made a monument out of it.

I have revisited IWO a half dozen times since the war ended. I was last there in 1960. At the top of Suribachi there is a memorial with two plaques. One bears the legend:

"23 February 1945 Old Glory was raised on this site by members of the 2nd BN 28th Regt. Fifth Marine Division."

The other plaque reads: "Among the Americans who served on Iwo Jima uncommon valor was a common virtue." The words belonged to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Perhaps the same words men who took Hill 875 at Dak To.

Klein thinks his idea would save the city money over the long haul and if only for that reason should find Garraghan receptive. The mayor is currently embroiled in the battle of the budget.

A word on that. Garraghan was soundly, if not foolishly, blasted for conflicting reports on just how much he expected the tax rate to be hiked for 1968.

The estimates range from $7 to $12. Garraghan's critics say he has confided to intimates that the figure will be more like $5. Garraghan's actions are being compared to an old Lyndon Johnson tactic of releasing a tremendously high budget figure and then "miraculously" bringing the budget in under that figure.

Some of Garraghan's critics never get near city hall but if they did they'd find out that the mayor, as of this date, has received almost no departmental requests. He bases his budget on those requests. Without them he's just guessing. One thing about Ray Garraghan, he doesn't play guessing games about money.

Return of Iwo Jima Stirs His Vivid Memories

By KEYES BEECH

Chicago Daily News Foreign Service
HONOLULU, Nov. 25—The news that the United States was going to give Iwo Jima back to the Japanese 22 years after we took it away from them was not the kind of stuff that makes page one banner headlines.

A tiny speck in the Pacific, 600 miles south of Tokyo, Iwo could hardly be less important. Nobody ever goes there any more. The total American military population is only 87 men—35 Coast Guardsmen who man a Loran navigational station, and 52 U. S. Air Force men who look after the airstrip and oil storage tanks in case some airborne airplane should make an emergency landing there.

But to a generation of now middle-aged Americans there was a time when Iwo was terribly important. It was, literally, a matter of life and death.

It seems incredible now, but nearly 5,000 Americans—17,272 were wounded—and 20,000 Japanese died for Iwo. They died for 7.8 square miles of black volcanic earth known as sulphur island.

Was it worth it? Was Dak To worth nearly 300 American dead?

I cannot speak for the men at Dak To. But perhaps I can speak for some of those who were at Iwo. Viewed from 20 years' hindsight, it probably wasn't worth it. But who was to say at the time that it wasn't?

A generation separates us from the men at Dak To, but I suspect those of us who were at Iwo had something in common with them. It never occurred to us to ask whether Iwo was worth the cost.

Maybe we were stupid. Maybe we just didn't know any better when we hit those black sand beaches. But I like to think that we did what we did because we were Americans. Because we had a job to do—just like those kids who went up those hills at Dak To.

Nothing is more boring than another man's war. Anyone under 40 who has got this far can stop reading now.

They told us to take the bloody island and we took it. They told us to win the war and we won it. I know—no body wins a war. But the United States would have been quite a different place if we had lost it.

For one thing, I doubt if there would have been quite as much dissent as there is today.

Iwo is as vivid to me today as the day it happened. I remember standing on the deck of the troop transport in the predawn darkness and watching the red flashes as the big Navy guns pounded the island.

"There won't be a Jap left alive on that island," exulted a young Navy gunfire officer.

"The hell you say," I said. I was at Tarawa, where the Navy learned at the expense of Marine lives that naval gunfire to be effective must be pinpointed.

Then I was lying on the beach next to my regimental commander, Col. "Harry the Horse" Liversedge, a mountainous man now long dead.

"We can't just lie here," he grumbled as the earth exploded around us. I waited for him to move and then I moved. After all, he was the regimental commander, not I.

I lay flat on my back in a shallow shell-hole with a typewriter on my stomach trying to write a story. A small brown and white dog came into my hole and licked my hand. He survived. The sergeant who was his master did not.

A big blond Marine walked into the aid station with half his jaw shot away. He tried to speak but could not. Then he tried to write in the sand. But as fast as his finger moved the shifting sand filled in what he had written. Disgusted, he stood up, ready to go.

My best friend was killed the next day when a mortar landed in the middle of our command post. I still remember his face. It was dirty. Then it began to rain and the raindrops made little white polka dots in his face.

I choked up when he died. But he was only the first of my friends to die. After that I felt nothing. I couldn't afford to feel anything.

Flag On Suribachi
Mine was the 28th Regiment. We were a proud outfit. We were good and we knew it. We were so good they gave us the job of taking Mount Suribachi. They gave us 12 hours to do it. We took four days and nearly a thousand casualties.

We put the flag on top of Suribachi and Joe Rosenthal took the most famous picture of World War II. They made a monument out of it.

I have revisited Iwo a half dozen times since the war ended. I was last there in 1960. At the top of Suribachi there is a memorial with two plaques. One bears the legend:

"23 February 1945 Old Glory was raised on this site by members of the 2nd BN 28th Regt. Fifth Marine Division."

The other plaque reads: "Among the Americans who served on Iwo Jima uncommon valor was a common virtue." The words belonged to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Perhaps the same words men who took Hill 875 at Dak To.

Would Cover Everyone

Levitt: Universal Health Care

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state administration's top-ranked Democrat enlivened the continuing debate over taxpayer-financed health care today by proposing an insurance program that would cover every resident of New York.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt offered a plan that would do far more than the compulsory health insurance proposal advocated by Gov. Rockefeller last winter.

Levitt jabbed at the Republican governor's plan by saying he would not be satisfied with a program that "sought only to be a palliative to the public expense of Medicaid."

Many county governments are pressing for much more money to help cover the costs imposed by execution of the Medicaid program.

Levitt took note of this and Rockefeller's plan Wednesday when he said: "It is no solution to the problem of Medicaid costs to shift part of the burden to employers in the form of premiums for a type of insurance."

Rockefeller has held out his insurance proposal as a means of cutting costs of the state's medical care program. In his recent series of "town meetings" across the state, he has discussed the concept again, while hinting he will ask for action next year. Rockefeller's plan would require every employer with at least three workers to contract with an insurer to provide health insurance for his workers and their families. The employer and the employee would share the cost equally.

Levitt called instead for a "universal health care insurance program."

He gave no specifics but said any such program should cover every employed worker, every unemployed person and all dependents. It also should provide full care for all illnesses and injuries, he said.

The comptroller also emphasized that he termed the need for "financial accountability" in such a plan—a method of insuring the need and reasonableness of hospital charges. He said his office was ready to "play a vital role" in this respect.

Potential Hazards Found Among Travelers Effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — An eagle-eyed federal inspector at Eagle Pass, Tex., spotted a raw potato on the top of a car radio antenna.

Dismissing the driver's plea that the spud improved his radio reception, the inspector confiscated the potato as representing a potential hazard to the nation's food supply.

Although more unusual than most, the suspect potato was just one of more than half a million items seized by government inspectors during the past fiscal year at sea ports, airfields and roadway points on entry into this country.

The Agriculture Department, which runs the inspection program, said some of the items deemed possibly hazardous harbored foreign insects and plant and animal diseases that could cause enormous damage to U.S. food production should they gain a foothold.

The antenna-borne potato, for instance, might have spread the destructive microscopic nematode pest.

Other potentially hazardous items were found in travelers' baggage, cargo, mail, cars, ships and planes arriving from foreign nations. Examined in all were 49 million pieces of baggage and nearly 57 million pieces of mail from abroad.

In New York, for instance, inspectors confiscated from a youthful Asian traveler his "special charm" against smallpox. The charm, a bundle of twigs wrapped in leaves, was found to bear several foreign insect pests, including a highly destructive citrus blackfly.

And in Miami an inspector seized avocados from a bassinet also containing an infant. Foreign-grown avocados are barred from entry because they often contain larvae of the avocado seed moth, a serious pest in Latin America.

Savings Banks Increase Bond Investments

New York State savings banks increased their investment in bonds other than those of the U.S. Government by $124,988,000 during October, 1967, and real estate mortgage loans, including building loans, by $146,338,000 or 0.48 per cent during the same month, the Savings Banks Association of New York State reported today.

Gross assets of New York's savings banks were increased by $187,238,000 this October, bringing the total to $38,695,712,000 or almost 10 per cent above the year ago figure. Mortgage loans totalled $30,828,517,000 or almost 80 per cent of assets at the end of this October.

In commenting upon the segments of the assets of savings banks in New York State, Dr. Austin S. Murphy, Association managing director, cited the fact that mortgage investments were at a level far in excess of any for a number of recent years. However, he suggested that the continued increase in the investment in non-government bonds was a reflection of the competitively high yields on such investments, aiding savings banks in maintaining a high rate of return to depositors.

LBJ Cabinet Change

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has stirred a new political storm by his performance in assigning Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to the presidency of the World Bank.

If there was anything Johnson didn't need at this point it was a controversy over the retirement from his Cabinet of the last influential dissenter to the military chiefs' advice to go all out in the effort to win the Vietnam war quickly.

But a combination of the President's inherent secretiveness and the requirements of international protocol led Johnson into a political quagmire bound to remain sticky throughout his expected 1968 bid for re-election.

Despite the valiant efforts of McNamara, in announcing acceptance of the unanimously proffered bank post, to absolve his chief of putting him and his possible critical voice in drydock for next year's campaign, it seems likely Johnson's anti-war critics will seize on the action as precisely so motivated.

McNamara suggested in a Wednesday night acceptance of the bank board's election of him as president that this was a magnanimous reward by the President to a bone-tired official who had served his country well for nearly seven years. But this did not square at all with what McNamara was telling friends two days earlier.

At that time he said, according to them, that he had not thought of leaving his defense post in the foreseeable future. He President that a change was imminent. He was amazed when the news leaks indicated he was on his way out.

Yes, he told friends, he had discussed with the President the bank job about which retiring president George D. Woods had approached him in the spring. But it had been only a casual conversation with Johnson at a social affair and he thought this was something to be considered in the future—possibly after the 1968 election.

McNamara's private version was that he had not heard from the President again. This conflicted with an administration version that before he told Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler—who put the McNamara nomination in the international mill in October—Johnson had called the defense secretary and asked him if he still were interested in the job. The administration version is that McNamara replied that he was. Even if there were such a disputed call, McNamara's friends said, he could only have regarded it as a presidential check on possible future action and not a White House action message.

Johnson's explanation that all of this started with Woods' approach to McNamara last spring emphasized that the defense secretary said then he was interested in the job as an opportunity for continued public service. The President added that when he talked to him, McNamara said he believed the Defense Department would benefit from the appointment of a "fresh person."

In neither the President's nor McNamara's explanation was there any time-table given for these various exchanges.

There seemed little doubt the President's political instincts occurred in the defense secretary's belief the "fresh person" might relieve the President of some political liabilities in next year's campaign.

McNamara was a prime target in the Republican's successful drive in the 1966 congressional elections and seemed likely to be again next year. A new secretary would not bring into the campaign the record of McNamara's optimistic forecasts of progress and victory in Vietnam for which he has been under intense political fire.

Meat: Ritual Slaughter . . .

Drive Prices Up

The HALE Bill would of necessity drive up the price of kosher meat to the consumer because it would deny the sale of non-kosher meat gleaned from ritualistic slaughter or would place a stigma on the "inhumanely" slaughtered hindquarter, and in turn drive the price of it down.

Hoisting and shackling is also done as an economic measure explains the rabbi. "It cuts down the price of meat. Let them find a better and economical way . . . rendering the animal insensible is a violation of Jewish law."

It is interesting that Rabbi Eugen Kullman, vice president of Friends of Animals, disagrees with his religious colleagues and disputes the interpretation of the Talmud with regard to the consciousness of the animal to be slain.

"The Jewish Press" concurs with Dr. Rappaport when it writes, "The fact is that the brutal handling of animals prior to shechita (slaughter) is a product of the 20th Century machine speed-up system. The ones who developed this method are the packers."

Swedish Argument

Arguments stating that ritualistic slaughter is not practiced in Sweden are also not valid, says Dr. Rappaport. There just are not very many Jews living there.

Ever since the federal government enacted legislation in 1958 declaring ritualistic and modern slaughter humane, the battle lines have been drawn. Many attempts such as the introduction of the HALE Bill have been made and some laws have been passed on the state level, but the inherent nature of the controversy has caused it, mostly, to end in stalemate.

Faces Court Martial

SAIGON (AP) — Spec. 4 Larry Osborn, 19, of Peekskill, N.Y., is tentatively scheduled to go on trial Dec. 20 before a general court-martial on a charge of involuntary manslaughter, a U.S. Army spokesman said today.

The trial will be held at the headquarters of the 25th Infantry Division at Cu Chi, 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Osborn has been stationed with the division at Dau Tieng, 50 miles north of Saigon.

The maximum sentence for involuntary manslaughter is three years in prison, dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay.

The U.S. spokesman said military regulations would not permit him to give any information about the case other than the charge.

Osborn's home address is 956 Paulding St.

Sprinklers Star

Minor damage was reported after a fire in the incinerator room at Caldor Shopping Center Wednesday night.

Sprinkler system set off the alarm at 5:55 p. m. summoning fire apparatus from Ulster Hose Company stations 1 and 2. Fire had been extinguished by the sprinklers when firemen arrived at the scene.

Trucks were back in service at 6:25 p. m. Lieutenant James Williams was in charge.

Driver Arrested

Police tagged a 37-year old Town of Wappingers man Wednesday on East Chester Street and charged him with being an unlicensed operator, driving an unregistered trailer and hauling an insured load. Posting $50 bail and pleading innocent today in court was Frederick D. Perry of Brennen Plaza, Town of Wappingers. He was arrested after patrol spotted Perry's truck carrying a load described by officers as "loosely secured." Perry will reappear in court Dec. 7.

Levitt: Universal Health Care

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The program that "sought only to be a palliative to the public expense of Medicaid."

Many county governments are pressing for much more money to help cover the costs imposed by execution of the Medicaid program.

Levitt jabbed at the Republican governor's plan by saying he would not be satisfied with a cutting costs of the state's medical care program. In his recent series of "town meetings" across the state, he has discussed the concept again while hinting he will ask for action next year.

Rockefeller's plan would require every employer with at least three workers to contract with an insurer to provide health insurance for his workers and their families. The employer and the employee would share the cost equally.

Levitt called instead for a "universal health - care insurance program."

He gave no specifics but said any such program should cover every employed worker, every unemployed person and all dependents. It also should provide full care for all illnesses and injuries, he said.

The comptroller also emphasized that he termed the need for "financial accountability" in such a plan—a method of insuring the need and reasonableness of hospital charges. He said his office was ready to "play a vital role" in this respect.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt offered a plan that would do far more than the compulsory health insurance proposal advocated by Gov. Rockefeller last winter.

Potential Hazards Found Among Travelers Effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — An eagle-eyed federal inspector at Eagle Pass, Tex., spotted a raw potato on the top of a car radio antenna.

Dismissing the driver's plea that the spud improved his radio reception, the inspector confiscated the potato as representing a potential hazard to the nation's food supply.

Although more unusual than most, the suspect potato was just one of more than half a million items seized by government inspectors during the past fiscal year at sea ports, airfields and roadway points on entry into this country.

The Agriculture Department, which runs the inspection program, said some of the items deemed possibly hazardous harbored foreign insects and plant and animal diseases that could cause enormous damage to U.S. food production should they gain a foothold.

The antenna-borne potato, for instance, might have spread the destructive microscopic nematode pest.

Other potentially hazardous items were found in travelers' baggage, cargo, mail, cars, ships and planes arriving from foreign nations. Examined in all were 48 million pieces of baggage and nearly 57 million pieces of mail from abroad.

In New York, for instance, inspectors confiscated from a youthful Asian traveler his "special charm" against smallpox. The charm, a bundle of twigs wrapped in leaves, was found to bear several foreign insect pests, including a highly destructive citrus blackfly.

Meat: Ritual Slaughter...

Drive Prices Up

The HALE Bill would of necessity drive up the price of kosher meat to the consumer because it would deny the sale of non-kosher meat gleaned from ritualistic slaughter or would place a stigma on the "inhumanely" slaughtered hindquarter, and in turn drive the price of it down.

Hoisting and shackling is also done as an economic measure explains the rabbi. "It cuts down the price of meat. Let them find a better and economical way . . . rendering the animal insensible is a violation of Jewish law."

It is interesting that Rabbi Eugen Kullman, vice president of Friends of Animals, disagrees with his religious colleagues and disputes the interpretation of the Talmud with regard to the consciousness of the animal to be slain.

"The Jewish Press" concurs with Dr. Rappaport when it writes, "The fact is that the brutal handling of animals prior to shechita (slaughter) is a part of the 20th Century machine speed-up system. The ones who developed this method are the packers."

Swedish Argument

Ever since the federal government enacted legislation in 1958 declaring ritualistic and modern slaughter humane, the battle lines have been drawn. Many attempts such as the introduction of the HALE Bill have been made and some laws have been passed on the state level, but the inherent nature of the controversy has caused it, mostly, to end in stalemate.

DOMINGUEZ, Calif. (AP) — A house that has become one family's fortress against the world may be breached by sheriff's deputies armed with warrants for the arrest of two of the nine occupants who say they won't come out "until God instructs us to."

Knife-Wielding Bandit Sought

An all points bulletin has been sent out by State Police for a bandit who robbed an Ardona general store owner last night of $200 at the point of a knife.

According to State Police the robbery occurred at about 7:05 p. m. last night when the thief entered the store located on Route 44-55 and confronted proprietor Kurt Laser with a knife.

The robber then reportedly took the $200 from the cash register and escaped in what is believed to be a green 1958 Pontiac with NB license plates.

The knife-wielding robber was described as a male Negro, five-foot, eleven-inches tall, weighing about 200 pounds, between 25 and 30 years of age and wearing a brown crew neck sweater and a black beret.

A BCI spokesman said that the NB plates means that "the registration was obtained in the City of Newburgh" or from the Newburgh area, but that "anyone can register his car" in Newburgh or Kingston or any other area in the State with relative ease.

Laser told The Freeman that the robber walked into the store and ordered a green item.

Laser said that with the tax the article would cost .60, and he took what he believed was a dollar from the man.

As Laser opened his cash register to make change, the man reached over the counter to the register and pulled out a knife with his free hand.

Laser said that the robber took out "most of the money" from the register.

The proprietor said that he "started to scream" and his wife came out from the back of the store. With this, the thief ran out of the store with Laser chasing him.

Once outside the bandit got into his car and when Laser reached the street, the man tried to run him down.

Several people, standing nearby, got into another car to give chase as the thief drove away and Laser went back to call the police.

The thief drove too fast for the others to catch up with him, according to police, but they managed to determine the make and year of the escaping automobile along with the NB plates.

Laser said that he was going to look over police mug shots later in the afternoon in hopes of picking out the man who robbed him. Police are continuing to scour the area.

The trend was also muddled by the typical Thursday evening-up operations prior to the weekend. In addition, fears of another rise in the U.S. discount rate were reported from foreign markets.

Small gains were scored by General Development, Ford and International Packers.

Brunswick opened on 10,600 shares, unchanged at 12 1/2.

The general news background to the market was considered more encouraging than otherwise. It included the ninth straight rise in the monthly cost of living index and a feeling that progress was being made in Washington toward unearthing the federal monetary problems.

On Wednesday The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped .2 to 317.0.

Woman Is Freed In Sullivan Trial

Sullivan County's Wheeler-Wyler murder trial is over for the time being with 23-year-old Susan Wheeler freed by the jury of six men and six women on charges of second degree murder and first and second degree manslaughter.

Her alleged accomplice, however, Robert Wyler, 30, faced a hung jury on the same charges and he will have to go through a similar ordeal in a re-prosecution of the case.

Shortly after Miss Wheeler was freed by the Sullivan County jury she was served with a warrant to appear in a Federal Court in New York City on a marijuana charge.

Nervous Investor Should Hold More Stable Stocks

Q—I've been trading for the last four years, trying to build up a little capital. Although I've been lucky, it's been making me very nervous because I can't afford to lose the little I have. Right now I own Data Control, Leigh Valley Products, United Nuclear. All are very volatile. As soon as the market corrects itself I would like to sell those and buy something better that you suggest. What do you think of American Telephone, Talcott, EG&G, American Research?

A—I'm very glad that you have been lucky, but if you're getting nervous, it is certainly time to revise your thinking considerably. We have been having a modest correction and I believe it's a pretty good time to sell the secondary issues you hold and get into less-volatile issues of higher quality. Your present holdings all have reasonable good speculative possibilities, but it may be some time before they work out. In place of them I suggest that you forego present income and concentrate on issues that can enhance your capital in the years ahead. American Telephone, I believe, is going to work out well and I recommend it. I wouldn't buy Talcott or any other factoring company under present money conditions. EG&G and American Research are good, but high priced and I would avoid them now. As substitutes I suggest Del Monte and Colgate-Palmolive, both strong and stable stocks with rising earnings patterns.

Q—What is your opinion of silver stocks? We own Hecla and Fresnillo and are considering buying more.—E. K.

A—I think well of silver stocks, but I know of none that produce that metal alone. Most also mine lead and zinc, which are not doing so well. Your stocks are reasonably good, but you must remember that Fresnillo is a Mexican company with other interests than silver and Hecla products lead and zinc as well as the white metal. (Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally, but will answer all questions possible in his column.)

Knife-Wielding Bandit Sought

An all points bulletin has been sent out by State Police for a bandit who robbed an Ardona general store owner last night of $200 at the point of a knife.

According to State Police the robbery occurred at about 7:05 p. m. last night when the thief entered the store located on Route 44-55 and confronted proprietor Kurt Laser with a knife.

The robber then reportedly took the $200 from the cash register and escaped in what is believed to be a green 1958 Pontiac with NB license plates.

The knife-wielding robber was described as a male Negro, five-foot, eleven-inches tall, weighing about 200 pounds, between 25 and 30 years of age and wearing a brown crew neck sweater and a black beret.

A BCI spokesman said that the NB plates means that "the registration was obtained in the City of Newburgh" or from the Newburgh area, but that "anyone can register his car" in Newburgh or Kingston or any other area in the State with relative ease.

Laser told The Freeman that the robber walked into the store and ordered a 59 cent item.

Laser said that with the tax the article would cost .60, and he took what he believed was a dollar from the man.

Legion Will Honor State Head Saturday

The home of Lloyd Post No. 193, American Legion, Grand Street, Highland, will be the scene of a testimonial dinner and dance Saturday night honoring State Commander Edward Delehanty of Albany. Dinner will be at 7:30 o'clock.

Ulster County Commander James Coppersmith of Ellenville reports a large attendance is anticipated and tickets and reservations may be made through Legion home post commanders. Among the invited guests is Major H. Edgar Timmerman, Third District Commander. Also

Name Two More GIs Killed in Viet War Zone

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Western New York soldier was killed in action in Vietnam while another died there in a non-hostile grenade accident their relatives say.
Mrs. Lester G. Green, of Elba, Genesee County, said Army authorities informed her Wednesday that her brother, S. Sgt. George F. Knowlton, 27, of Gainesville, Wyoming County, was wounded by artillery fire November 19.
An eight-year service veteran Knowlton had served in Vietnam since April. He attended Letchworth Central School and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George H. Knowlton of Gainesville. Besides his sister, he leaves three brothers and three sisters.
The non-hostile grenade incident November 22 took the life of Army Spec. 4 James P. Saurini, 21, of Tonawanda, north of Buffalo, his mother said Wednesday. His mother, Mrs. Lois Talbot, said her son was due to return home in March, having served in Vietnam since July.
Saurini, a graduate of Tonawanda Senior High School, served three years in Germany before being transferred to Vietnam. He met his wife Gabriele, in Germany.

Duck, 20, said he has quite a time with his name. He said shortly after his arrival in San Diego he was sent to the naval hospital. He said he had to convince three staff nurses, two corpsmen and one doctor that Donald Duck of Agana, Guam,

as American as the double feature

There you are munching on popcorn and enjoying a cliff-hanging second feature at the movie house. And all you paid was the price of a single picture. It's the American way of doing business. Giving you something extra that doesn't cost you extra...like the second cup of coffee free, the prize in the Cracker Jack box and the free train ride for youngsters under twelve. That's the way it is with Triple-S Blue Stamps. They're something extra you don't pay extra for...compliments of your neighborhood merchants. Shop where this traditionally American spirit prevails: at merchants who say, "The Blue Stamps are on us...not you!"

Municipal Budgets in Country Show Signs of Strain

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's cities are hunting for more revenue to balance their steadily—and in instances sharply—increasing expenses.

Rising prices of goods and services, increasing salaries, and expanding populations are putting pressure on municipal budgets throughout the country. More people mean more parks, playgrounds and swimming pools, more demand for water, expanded sewerage systems, more garbage collection, more police and fire protection, and more persons on welfare.

Cities have been forced to enlarge or improve their physical plants, buy more efficient and sophisticated equipment, hire more people, and pay their employees more money to keep them from taking better jobs in private industry.

An Associated Press survey of 27 of the nation's largest cities revealed, among other things:

—A nearly 19 per cent budget increase at Baltimore in a single year, to just under $538 million.

—A 13.7 per cent increase, representing $634 million, for New York City where the $5.178 billion 1967-68 budget nearly trebled that of 11 years ago.

Phoenix, Ariz., whose finance director, Jack Urie, blamed "higher wages, higher costs and inflation" for continually rising budgets, is an extreme example of growth pressure. In 1950, Phoenix encompassed 17 square miles and had a population of 107,000. Today it covers 248 square miles and has 525,000 inhabitants.

There has been no property tax increase at Phoenix in 14 years, Urie said, but revenue has been increased by a 1 per cent city sales tax, the city's 40 per cent share of a one-cent increase in the state gasoline tax, and a 2 per cent utility tax.

Houston, operating on a "hold the line" $109-million budget, up $7 million from last year, has reached the point where "we are unable to furnish all the services we would like within the structure of present income," said Mayor Louie Welch.

Yet since that budget was adopted, the City Council voted pay increases for policemen and firemen in 1968 and is considering increases for other employees.

A 1 per cent city sales tax goes before Houston voters Dec. 5. If the sales tax is rejected, Welch said, property taxes will have to be increased to raise $11 million to $14 million needed for pay raises.

San Antonio, Tex., also votes Dec. 5 on the city sales tax. Officials said a property tax boost is the alternative there too.

Every city covered in the survey said increasing wages and salaries of municipal employees are a major factor in rising budgets.

"City government as well as private industry has to meet the competitive market for higher wages," said Walter Stecher, Detroit's budget director.

Detroit's $420-million budget represents an increase of more than $12 million in one year. Stecher said cities also have to meet increased costs of construction, materials and supplies.

Detroit needs state legislative action to provide new revenues, he said, because the city is levying the limit on property taxes. He suggested an excise tax, such as a hotel tax, or raising the 1 per cent city income tax. New York City's new income tax is expected to produce $167 million to apply on its record budget.

Pittsburgh reported inquiries from other cities interested in its $10-a-year occupation tax on every person employed in Pittsburgh, regardless of residence. The tax is in addition to the city wage tax, collected only from Pittsburgh residents.

Los Angeles passed a 4 per cent utility users tax on telephone, gas and electric service and raised real estate transfer and license fees to meet costs which have risen $20 million in two years.

The council rejected Mayor Sam Yorty's proposal for a garbage collection fee, and also an earnings tax on all persons employed in the city, urged by Yorty to permit reducing property tax rates.

Two other California cities—San Francisco and San Diego—cut property tax rates but reassessments raised valuations on which the rates are applied. San Francisco's budget is up $29 million to $433 million and San Diego's is up $10 million to $91 million.

Philadelphia is relying in part on a city wage tax to provide the additional $11.8 million embodied in its $406 million budget for 1968. Pay increases for 30,000 municipal employees accounted for most of the boost.

Pay increases of 5 to 8 per cent and the addition of 1,200 employees are included in Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley's proposed $713-million budget. The total is $70 million higher than for the current year.

The Civic Federation, a private, nonpartisan tax research organization, estimated the rise would boost property tax rates by 19 cents per $100 assessed valuation despite a city sales tax increase from ½ per cent to ¾ per cent. Daley proposed raising the 2 per cent telephone tax to 5 per cent, saying this would hold a property tax increase to 11 cents per $100.

Fifty-million dollars allocated to school construction, provision for hiring 788 more teachers, and an air pollution control program helped boost the Washington, D.C., budget by $80 million to nearly $501 million.

Mayors A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis and Gus Davis of Kansas City are pressing for larger shares of the Missouri sales tax to help meet budget increases.

Gov. Warren Hearnes has ordered a study of the question. Both cities are levying the limit on property to cover Kansas City's $77-million budget, up $5 million from last year, and St. Louis' nearly $99 million, up 20 per cent in five years.

Milwaukee's mayor Henry Maier also has asked for a bigger share of the Wisconsin state income tax and state tax on utilities. Milwaukee's $13-million budget increase goes largely for general purposes including police and fire department operations.

Real estate owners in Boston will pay an additional $16.80 per $1,000 assessed valuation to help finance the $16.5 million budget increase.

About 58 per cent of Boston's real estate is tax exempt—owned by governments, religious groups, schools or charitable organizations.

Boston's total budget includes $182.6 million to be raised by the city, and, on the basis of current year's figures, plus $71 million from the state and $25 million from the federal government.

Denver's city council has decided to transfer to the operating budget $3.5 million earmarked for capital improvements, and to eliminate $650,000 in fees paid to merchants for collecting the sales tax. Mayor Tom Currigan's proposal to raise the city sales tax to meet the $61.5-million budget, up $5 million, was rejected. The increase is earmarked mainly for pay raises for policemen, firemen, career employees and judges.

Atlanta boosted the property tax 1 mill and business license fees 65 per cent to cover a $10-million increase in the 1967 budget. The $58.5 million total represents a 137 per cent increase in 10 years. Gov. Lester Maddox blocked a proposed city sales tax, and a payroll tax on commuters died in a legislative committee.

Property tax increases—8 mills in Minneapolis—and rebates from the new Minnesota state excise tax figure in financing the higher budgets for Minneapolis and St. Paul. Minneapolis' budget is up $6 million at $63 million. St. Paul's up $4.5 million at $41.7 million.

Some other reports: Seattle, Wash.—Mayor J. Dorn Brame's nearly $227-million budget includes a general fund of almost $49.5 million—a 19 per cent increase covered by higher taxes, license fees and fines.

Newark, N.J.—The $95-million budget is nearly $12 million higher than last year, funded by an anticipated $17 million more revenue from property tax rate increases.

Columbus, Ohio—Finance Director John P. Stanley estimates the 1968 budget will be up $1.7 million, from $29.2, and that a $1-million surplus will help pay salary increases figured at $2.2 million.

Property tax increases—8 mills in Minneapolis—and rebates from the new Minnesota state excise tax figure in financing the higher budgets for Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Minneapolis' budget is up $6 million to $63 million, St. Paul's up $4.5 million to $41.7 million.

Some other reports: Seattle, Wash.—Mayor J. Dorn Braman's nearly $227-million budget includes a general fund of almost $49.5 million—a 19 per cent increase covered by higher taxes, license fees and fines.

Newark, N.J.—The $95-million budget is nearly $12 million higher than last year, funded by an anticipated $17 million more revenue from property tax rate increases.

Columbus, Ohio—Finance Director John P. Stanley estimates the 1968 budget will be up $1.7 million, from $29.2, and that a $1-million surplus will help pay salary increases figured at $2.2 million.

Denver's city council has decided to transfer to the operating budget $3.5 million earmarked for capital improvements, and to eliminate $650,000 in fees paid to merchants for collecting the sales tax.

Mayor Tom Currigan's proposal to raise the city sales tax to meet a $61.5-million budget, up $5 million, was rejected. The increase is earmarked mainly for pay raises for policemen, firemen, career employees and judges.

Atlanta boosted the property tax 1 mill and business license fees 65 per cent to cover a $10-million increase in the 1967 budget. The $58.5 million total represents a 137 per cent increase in 10 years.

Eisenhowers' Farm, House To Be Shrine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his wife have donated their farm and house at Gettysburg, Pa., to the United States as a national historic site, the White House announced today.

The Eisenhowers will continue to occupy their home and use the farm facilities during Gen. Eisenhower's lifetime, but arrangements will be made for authorizing future development of visitors' facilities there for tourists.

Formal transfer of the property to the United States occurred Monday afternoon in a simple ceremony at Gettysburg in which the Eisenhowers and Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall took part.

The Eisenhower farm, including 230 acres, adjoins the Gettysburg National Military Park, site of the famous Civil War battlefield. It was acquired by the United States in 1950.

Marist Hosts Student Discovery Day Project

The eight grades from the two schools, Immaculate Conception and St. Peter's, participated in a Day of Discovery program at the Esopus Campus of Marist College this week.

The student Brothers, under the direction of Brother A. J. Nolan and assisted by Sister M. Alacoe and Sister Adrina, organized the day-long activities for the 48 students who took part.

Pilot Program

The program marked the beginning of a forward-looking attempt to provide seventh and eighth graders with a more meaningful experience in religious education. In the spirit of educational renewal inspired by Vatican II, the Day of Discovery project demonstrated its potential as a means of presenting the grammar school student with a fresh outlook toward the study of religion. Through the use of group dynamics which involved the students in discussions, sing-alongs, and liturgical celebration, the program demonstrated that in today's ever-increasing materialistic society, God can still be the principal force in a man's life.

Friendship Theme

The morning's activities began with a talk given by one

Pays for '37 Film

NICE, France (AP) — The manager of a local movie theater says he has received a check for $2 from a Philadelphia who said he saw a film there without paying 30 years ago.

The manager said the check was signed by E.J. Diana of 1622 Spring Mill Road, Gladwyne.

His letter said: "I am now a member of a Christian organization and must pay my debts and clear my sins. That is why I am sending you $2 and hope it corresponds to the price of a seat 30 years ago."

of the student brothers setting forth the theme of Friendship with God and Neighbor. The subsequent discussions, drawing from personal experiences and based on the psychology that

"a problem shared is half a problem" proved to be a definite step in helping the grammar school student better understand himself. In the afternoon, the theme of Man's Need for Others was developed through the use of a film, and more group activity.

The Rev. John Farley of St. Mary's parish in Kingston celebrated Mass as the closing part of the day's activities. The Day of Discovery program is a revision of an earlier attempt of making religion more meaningful for the young adolescent in which the students of St. Mary's participated. It is the hope of the student brothers that the present program will receive a welcome response by other schools in the county.

LSDer Leary Quitting Public Life, Weds Ex-Model Who Was His Aide

LSDer advocate Dr. Timothy Tepper, Dr. Leary's lawyer, Leary, who once advised young said that he "did not understand the full import" of Leary's drop out," says he is "dropping out of public life," and giving up his work with the "League for Spiritual Discovery," a group he founded under the name of Castalia Foundation in Millbrook.

Leary also said that he and the former Rosemary Woodguff, 33, a former actress and model who worked as his administrative assistant, were married on Nov. 11 at a sunrise ceremony at the top of a mountain in the desert near Joshua Tree, Calif. They will live in nearby Laguna Beach for the winter, he told a reporter for the Laguna News-Post.

The former Harvard psychologist, who left the university in 1963 following criticism of his advocacy of using the psychedelic drug, condemned the use of drugs for "selfish kicks."

He said, "LSD, when it is used properly, is a sacrament aimed to produce love of God and man. If it is used for selfish kicks, it is harmful."

Welcome News

A spokesman at the Millbrook estate where the Castalia Foundation is housed told The Freeman, "This is welcome news. (Dr. Leary) certainly deserves all the privacy of a dropped out life, and I hope he means it when he says he is dropping out of public life."

When asked why he hoped Leary was serious, the spokesman, apparently a young man, said, "He (Leary) has done a lot of hard work (in advancing the purpose of the League) and he received an awful lot of grief."

Asked if the Castalia Foundation would continue on without founder Leary, the spokesman answered, "Nothing is ever destroyed."

When The Freeman attempted to get Dr. Leary's Laguna Beach telephone number, the spokesman said, "The man (Leary) expressed his opinion that he wanted to drop out of public life and you people won't let him (and) that's your hang-up."

Poughkeepsie attorney Noel

it across a national boundary.

The Poughkeepsie attorney said that although the Castalia group "is not funded" at this time, a number of people plan to stay at the Millbrook estate "throughout the winter."

He said that some of the people were staying in an "insulated tepee with a fireplace in the middle."

Tepper said that some of the people worked at "nine to five jobs" in the community, that there was a lead group of about 20 people and a Hindu group "of approximately 25 people" which was "separate and apart, both socially and economically" from the lead group.

When asked if he thought Leary's "drop out" was due to police and public harassment, Tepper answered, "Not totally. Dr. Leary enjoys a good fight, but there was a good deal of personal freedom lost under the public spotlight."

Laguna Beach was described by the lawyer as an "upper middle class community," and that Leary "was not living in a communal setting" as he had on the Millbrook estate.

Leary's wife, according to Tepper, was arrested for contempt of court a year ago "for refusing to testify on the operations of the foundation."

Fish Happy

Millbrook attorney Hamilton Fish Jr., who helped organize a group last summer that served as a study group on the uses and effects of drugs, said that "I certainly agree with Dr. Leary when he says that there were too many people who used the drug (LSD) for 'kicks.'"

Fish declared that his group "cannot take the credit for (Leary's) decision, but I must say I'm happy about it."

Marist Hosts Student Discovery Day Project

The eight grades from the two schools, Immaculate Conception and St. Peter's, participated in a Day of Discovery program at the Esopus Campus of Marist College this week.

The student Brothers, under the direction of Brother A. J. Nolan and assisted by Sister M. Alacoue and Sister Adrina, organized the day-long activities for the 48 students who took part.

Pilot Program

The program marked the beginning of a forward-looking attempt to provide seventh and eighth graders with a more meaningful experience in religious education. In the spirit of educational renewal inspired by Vatican II, the Day of Discovery project demonstrated its potential as a means of presenting the grammar school student with a fresh outlook toward the study of religion. Through the use of group dynamics which involved the students in discussions, sing-alongs, and liturgical celebration, the program demonstrated that in today's ever-increasing materialistic society, God can still be the principal force in a man's life.

Friendship Theme

The morning's activities began with a talk given by one

Pays for '37 Film

NICE, France (AP) — The manager of a local movie theater says he has received a check for $2 from a Philadelphia who said he saw a film there without paying 30 years ago.

The manager said the check was signed by E.J. Diana of 1622 Spring Mill Road, Gladwyne.

His letter said: "I am now a member of a Christian organization and must pay my debts and clear my sins. That is why I am sending you $2 and hope it corresponds to the price of a seat 30 years ago."

of the student brothers setting forth the theme of Friendship with God and Neighbor. The subsequent discussions, drawing from personal experiences and based on the psychology that

"a problem shared is half a problem" proved to be a definite step in helping the grammar school student better understand himself. In the afternoon, the theme of Man's Need for Others was developed through the use of a film, and more group activity.

The Rev. John Farley of St. Mary's parish in Kingston celebrated Mass as the closing part of the day's activities. The Day of Discovery program is a revision of an earlier attempt of making religion more meaningful for the young adolescent in which the students of St. Mary's participated. It is the hope of the student brothers that the present program will receive a welcome response by other schools in the county.

LSDer Leary Quitting Public Life, Weds Ex-Model Who Was His Aide

LSD advocate Dr. Timothy Tepper, Dr. Leary's lawyer, said that he "did not understand the full import" of Leary's drop out, says he is "dropping out of public life," and giving up his work with the "League for Spiritual Discovery," a past six months.

The reasons for this, Tepper explained, is that Leary "wants a more private existence and a smaller family unit."

Leary also said that he and the former Rosemary Woodruff, 33, a former actress and model who worked as his administrative assistant, were married on Nov. 11 at a sunrise ceremony at the top of a mountain in the desert near Joshua Tree, Calif. They will live in nearby Laguna Beach for the winter, he told a reporter for the Laguna News-Post.

The former Harvard psychologist, who left the university in 1963 following criticism of his advocacy of using the psychedelic drug, condemned the use of drugs for "selfish kicks."

He said, "LSD, when it is used properly, is a sacrament aimed to produce love of God and man. If it is used for selfish kicks, it is harmful."

Welcome News

A spokesman at the Millbrook estate where the Castilia Foundation is housed told The Freeman, "This is welcome news. (Dr. Leary) certainly deserves all the privacy of a dropped out life, and I hope he means it when he says he is dropping out of public life."

When asked why he hoped Leary was serious, the spokesman, apparently a young man, said, "He (Leary) has done a lot of hard work (in advancing the purpose of the League) and he received an awful lot of grief."

Asked if the Castilia Foundation would continue on without founder Leary, the spokesman answered, "Nothing is ever destroyed."

When The Freeman attempted to get Dr. Leary's Laguna Beach telephone number, the spokesman said, "The man (Leary) expressed his opinion that he wanted to drop out of public life and you people won't let him (and) that's your hang-up."

Poughkeepsie attorney Noel

it across a national boundary.

The Poughkeepsie attorney said that although the Castilia group "is not funded" at this time, a number of people plan to stay at the Millbrook estate "throughout the winter."

He said that some of the people were staying in an "insulated teepee with a fireplace in the middle."

Tepper said that some of the people worked at "nine to five jobs" in the community, that there was a lead group of about 20 people and a Hindu group "of approximately 25 people" which was "separate and apart, both socially and economically" from the lead group.

When asked if he thought Leary's "drop out" was due to police and public harassment, Tepper answered, "Not totally. Dr. Leary enjoys a good fight, but there was a good deal of personal freedom lost under the public spotlight."

Laguna Beach was described by the lawyer as an "upper middle class community," and that Leary "was not living in a communal setting" as he had on the Millbrook estate.

Leary's wife, according to Tepper, was arrested for contempt of court a year ago "for refusing to testify on the operations of the foundation."

He has served as lecturer on behalf of the New York State Bar Association and Practising Law Institute on the subject "Foreign Countries' Matrimonial Decrees" at a seminar held in Kingston in June of 1967 which was attended by members of the Bar of the Third Judicial District.

The Joint Legislative Committee on Matrimonial and Family Law has recently held public hearings in New York, Buffalo, and Syracuse, and is presently studying changes that should be made, first in the section on the validity of out of State divorces and in provisions that require conciliation proceedings before the granting of a divorce.

The statutes which went into effect Sept. 1 reformed New York's 179-year-old divorce law, under which adultery was the sole ground for divorce. Several new grounds were added, including cruelty, desertion, imprisonment and voluntary separation.

The conciliation procedures to have many defects, such as complicated processes, unnecessary delays, duplicative proceedings as between commissioners and judges on issues of temporary alimony, child support and counsel fees, and confinement of conciliation to divorce action to the exclusion of separation suits, and others.

Kingston High School Chemistry Teacher Recalls Pioneer Atom Splitting Efforts

Dec. 2, 1942, beneath the West Stands at Stagg Field at the University of Chicago, Enrico Fermi, Nobel Prize physicist ordered a cadmium plated rod removed from a huge, ugly pile of black bricks. Counters clicked like mad and a pen on a moving chart went into a steep climb.

Fermi closed his slide rule and calmly announced, "This is it, boys. The reaction is self-sustaining; the curve is exponential." For the time, man had unleashed and controlled the energy of the atom. History was made in what had been a squash-rackets court.

Was on Scene

Leon Sayvetz, then a graduate physics student, and now a chemistry teacher at Kingston High School, was one of 42 persons present that day. The group watched tensely while the world's first reactor operated for a few minutes at a power level of a few watts. Then Fermi called out, "O.K. Zip in," to the man on the control rod, and it was all over. A self-sustained nuclear reaction had been initiated and stopped.

At this point, Eugene Wigner, destined to be a future Nobel laureate, stepped forward with a bottle of Chianti wine which he had been hiding. Fermi uncorked it, poured it into paper cups, and joined everyone in a silent, solemn toast. Then, all signed the straw covering of the bottle. Later, these signatures would serve as the roll call of those who had been present, since no one thought to record this, nor for that matter, to take any photos of the reactor.

Mark Anniversary

Thus, Dec. 2, 1967, marks the 25th anniversary of one of the most crucial experiments ever performed, one which holds great promise as well as danger for mankind. At the time, Sayvetz did not know this success would lead to the development of the awesome atomic bomb, whose existence threatens us all. He, along with most others, fervently hopes that man can learn to control himself so that our society, imperfect as it is, may continue to exist.

During the next few days, the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission will dedicate a full scale replica of the original reactor and an exhibit recalling Fermi's life and work, at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

At the University of Chicago, five Nobel Prize winners and other eminent men will participate in a two day observance of the event.

These commemorative meetings are being held to underline the positive role which nuclear energy can play if allowed to do so. Sayvetz will attend both of them.

Civil Service Employees Meet

The Ulster County Chapter of Civil Service Employees Association meeting this week at the county office building heard reports on a number of recent activities.

Harold DeGraff, president, presided over the meeting which was attended by representatives of the three units of government in the chapter — City of Kingston employees, school district employees and county employees.

Leon Studt, representative of the city employees, reported on CSEA attempts at bargaining with city government and Martin Kelly reported on recent activities of a county member committee in setting up a new county employees unit.

Plans are being made to hold another general membership meeting of county employees to elect officers.

Edward J. Gusty, area field representative commented on the current membership drive and a recent meeting with the county board of supervisors.

Results of the statewide civil service employees group's annual meeting were detailed by DeGraff. The state meeting was held at the Concord Hotel, Kiamasha Lake, last month.

It is estimated that bad handwriting cost American business $70 million year because of scrawled bills, orders, invoices, checks and tickets.

Indian Chief Protests Action To Force Braves on the Warpath

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A young Mohawk Indian was under indictment today for failing to be inducted into the armed forces, and his chief claims the federal government "has no right to force my braves to take the warpath."

Thomas R. Porter, 23, of Niagara Falls was indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury.

Standing Arrow, his chief, claims the Canandaigua treaty of 1794 and the Fort Stanwix treaty of 1784, made by the government with the Indians' Six Nation Confederacy, relieves those Indians of any obligation to serve in the military. The government argues that U.S. draft laws supercede any treaties between the United States and Indians.

After his arrest in 1966, Porter was released in custody of Standing Arrow. Both were believed at the St. Regis Reservation at Hogansburg, in Northern New York.

Porter, who says he was not subject to the draft, registered with Board 80 in Niagara Falls while inquiring about his status. He claims he was told he should register and that the question of his status under the Indian treaties would be taken care of later.

Subsequently, he was classified 1A and ordered to report for induction in July 1966. Porter was born in Rochester. His Niagara Falls address was 639 Ashland Ave.

Plan Permanent Yule Tree in City, At Corner of Henry St.-Broadway

Jaycee Sponsor

The project is being sponsored by the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce. Cooperating with the Jaycees are the city department of public works and Orvil E. Norman, owner of the Kingston Garden Center.

The tree is expected to be a Black Hill Spruce and at present is growing in Stone Ridge. It is expected to be brought to Kingston tomorrow by the department of public works and Norman will supervise the replanting. Norman described the 12-year-old tree as 32-35 feet in height with an 18-foot spread. The tree could reach an ultimate height of 50 feet.

Broadway and Henry Street was not the first choice of the

Jaycee committee headed by Victor Locke of the Rondout Savings Bank. Locke, the Jaycee's internal vice president, originally wanted the tree at the Rt. 28 interchange of the Col. George F. Chandler Highway.

State officials did not go along with the idea, considering the tree a possible distraction and traffic hazard.

Hardy Tree

Even though the tree is 12 years old, Norman has high hopes for its survival. Norman says the Black Hill Spruce is a hardy tree and is the best type of "Christmas tree" to transplant from the viewpoint of survival chances.

Lighting of the tree, with appropriate ceremonies, is expected shortly after Friday's planting.

Plan Permanent Yule Tree in City, At Corner of Henry St.-Broadway

Jaycee Sponsor

The project is being sponsored by the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce. Cooperating with the Jaycees are the city department of public works and Orvil E. Norman, owner of the Kingston Garden Center.

The tree is expected to be a Black Hill Spruce and at present is growing in Stone Ridge. It is expected to be brought to Kingston tomorrow by the department of public works and Norman will supervise the replanting. Norman described the 12-year-old tree as 32-35 feet in height with an 18-foot spread. The tree could reach an ultimate height of 50 feet.

Broadway and Henry Street was not the first choice of the

Jaycee committee headed by Victor Locke of the Rondout Savings Bank. Locke, the Jaycee's internal vice president, originally wanted the tree at the Rt. 28 interchange of the Col. George F. Chandler Highway.

State officials did not go along with the idea, considering the tree a possible distraction and traffic hazard.

Hardy Tree

Even though the tree is 12

years old, Norman has high hopes for its survival. Norman says the Black Hill Spruce is a hardy tree and is the best type of "Christmas tree" to transplant from the viewpoint of survival chances.

Death Penalty Restoration Move Underway

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A move to restore the all-but-abandoned death penalty in New York State was under way today in the state Legislature—sparked by two lawmakers who opposed capital punishment in 1965.

Sen. Jeremiah Bloom and Assemblyman George A. Cincotta, Brooklyn Democrats, introduced bills to that effect Wednesday for consideration when the Legislature meets next January.

In a statement calling attention to their action, the two lawmakers said they thought the death penalty would be "a deterrent to crime rampant in our state."

Until 2½ years ago, the state authorized a death sentence for murder, kidnapping or treason. The new law allows the death penalty to be carried out only when a policeman is killed while on duty or when a convict sentenced to life commits a murder in prison or during an escape.

Both Bloom and Cincotta voted for the virtual abolition of capital punishment in 1965.

Six Firemen Get Permanent Status Friday

Six provisional firemen have been appointed to permanent status effective Friday, the Board of Fire Commissioners disclosed today.

Joining the department as permanent members are George Mastin, Larry Dachenhausen, Roland B. Purhamus, William Cole, John Heybruck and Frank Purcell.

The board said these appointments completely exhausted the present Civil Service list and that an examination for firemen will be offered early in 1968.

The Softening Up Job Underway for Major State Tax Increase

By CHARLES DUMAS
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller obviously has begun the softening-up process designed to prepare New Yorkers for a major increase in state taxes next year.

He is conducting across the state, Rockefeller deftly has guided discussion of state fiscal affairs to an inevitable conclusion—that taxes must go up. He always stops short of making such a flat statement himself but sets forth the facts in town meetings, with the avowed purpose of securing citizen views on his 1968 legislative program, observers looked for a more subtle political motive. Some suggested that his real purpose might be to keep himself in the public eye and attract attention to himself as a political performer worthy of next year's Republican presidential nomination—despite his repeated disclaimers of White House ambitions. To others, this seemed to be stretching things a bit.

The Pavement
As the road show progressed, a different pattern began to emerge, and it appeared that one of his motives, at least, was to pave the way for a tax increase. Gradually, Rockefeller permitted his audiences to draw him out on the fiscal situation. He listened sympathetically to their pleas for more state aid to meet the soaring costs of the medical-aid program and of operating the public schools. He agreed that the state should do more, then asked where the money was coming from.

Last week, Rockefeller laid the facts on the line, this way: —The state faces mandated aid increases for education and welfare programs totaling $37 million, while local school districts are seeking further aid of nearly 800 million. Additional help to defray Medicaid costs would run the bill much higher. —At the same time, the state's present tax structure is expected to produce only $300 million more next year from normal growth, but all of this money is needed for state services, including State University expansion and state-employee pay raises.

Rockefeller suggested then and at later meetings that the only answer was to raise taxes. But he did not recommend this directly. Instead, he has appeared to be inviting his audiences to make this recommendation themselves. The message came across clearly enough for Democratic leaders of the Legislature. Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia and Senate Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki quickly raised a clamor of protest.

Dems Opposed
Travia, who runs the Democratic-controlled Assembly, growled that Rockefeller had better try cutting expenses instead. Zaretzki declared there was no chance that legislators would vote a major tax increase in their re-election year.

But Rockefeller was undeterred. He continued to pursue the same strategy, telling New Yorkers in effect, "I'm willing, if that's what you want."

Obviously, his mission is to amass enough evidence at his town meetings to go before the Legislature next January and say that the people are willing to pay more taxes to obtain more state aid.

Then, the election-conscious lawmakers will take it from there.

Recommended Hold-Down on 'Copter Buying, Is Sorry Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's leading "Whiz Kid" acknowledges it was he who recommended a hold-down on Army helicopter buying before the big U.S. buildup began in Vietnam. He says he was sorry later.

Dr. Alain C. Enthoven, assistant secretary of defense for systems analysis, told a Senate subcommittee he made the recommendation to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara while the fiscal 1965 budget was being prepared.

The Army wanted to buy 900 UH1 helicopters, an increase of 200 over 1964.

Wanted Same Rate
"I recommended to Secretary McNamara that we stay at about the same rate of 700 we procured in fiscal year 1964,"

Urges Suitable Room Locally

Murphy Defends Grand Jury System

Responding to charges that the grand jury system was outdated and that it should be abolished, Kingston attorney Vernon Murphy urged that a watchdog committee be set up to protect the institution, and that legislation be sponsored for the establishment of a permanent staff for the grand jury to free it from sole reliance upon the district attorney.

Murphy also suggested that a suitable jury room be constructed for Ulster County petit juries "in place of the inadequate and undignified space now allotted them in the cellar and hallways of the County courthouse," said Murphy.

Murphy delivered his talk before the Grand Jurors Association of Ulster County at the group's November meeting.

Murphy outlined the history of the grand jury to the members present and established it as the oldest institution "of any significance in modern society, predating the Magna Charta (1215), the Declaration of Independence (1776), the Constitution of the United States (1787), even the Presidency."

The Ulster County lawyer said that the grand jury "was an evolution of the earliest concepts of peace and freedom adopted in England from the modes of trial of Roman, Anglo-Saxons and Anglo-Normans and Scandinavian invaders from Norway and Denmark."

"The jury system as an entity emerged during the reign of Henry II (1154-1159), and, by 1368, a modern grand jury was established and has not materially changed since."

Murphy declared that the system "put an end to trial by combat, ordeal, and compurgation in the western world, and pointed out that the absence of the grand jury system has precluded trial by ordeal in the dictatorship of the left or right correction.

His main point was that "the Army appeared to be getting out of balance" with a proposed chopper procurement rate that he felt then would have outrun formation of units and the training of crews.

About eight months after the fiscal 1965 budget went to Congress, President Johnson set in motion the large-scale commitment of U.S. ground forces in the Vietnam war.

"When we greatly increased our combat forces in Vietnam and saw that the helicopter mobility that we encouraged was a very good thing," Enthov-

Recommended Hold-Down on 'Copter Buying, Is Sorry Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's leading "Whiz Kid" acknowledges it was he who recommended a hold-down on Army helicopter buying before the big U.S. buildup began in Vietnam. He says he was sorry later.

Dr. Alain C. Enthoven, assistant secretary of defense for systems analysis, told a Senate subcommittee he made the recommendation to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara while the fiscal 1965 budget was being prepared.

The Army wanted to buy 900 UH1 helicopters, an increase of 200 over 1964.

Wanted Same Rate
"I recommended to Secretary McNamara that we stay at about the same rate of 700 we procured in fiscal year 1964,"

Enthoven testified. "He eventually decided on 720."

The 37-year-old Enthoven, highly influential in Pentagon policy formation since 1961, claimed "there were sensible reasons" for making the helicopter hold-down decision at the time.

His main point was that "the Army appeared to be getting out of balance" with a proposed chopper procurement rate that he felt then would have outrun formation of units and the training of crews.

About eight months after the fiscal 1965 budget went to Congress, President Johnson set in motion the large-scale commitment of U.S. ground forces in the Vietnam war.

"When we greatly increased our combat forces in Vietnam and saw that the helicopter mobility that we encouraged was a very good thing," Enthoven said, "we wanted more, and we regretted that particular decision."

In claiming that "we encouraged" helicopter mobility, Enthoven referred to previous moves by McNamara to get the services interested.

Pentagon records show that from mid-1965 to mid-1967 the U.S. military helicopter fleet grew by more than 3,000 machines—from more than 6,200 to 9,300-plus.

Decision Discussed

The controversial prebuildup helicopter decision was discussed during hearings before a Senate Government Operations subcommittee studying the Pentagon's Planning, Programming and Budgeting System.

Basic to this system are the cost-effectiveness studies carried out by Enthoven's analysts. He testified behind closed doors in September and October, and his testimony was made public by the Senate group Sunday night.

Opening the hearings, Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said cost-effectiveness analysis "can be used as easily to justify a decision as to make a sensible choice."

"It can be employed as a weapon to try to overwhelm and beat down other viewpoints," Jackson said. He did not identify the holders of "other viewpoints," but apparently meant the armed services.

"And no idea is so good that it cannot be killed by over-analysis," Jackson said. Enthoven contended Systems Analysis has avoided waste of more than $30 billion on hardware projects that he said would have been mistakes to pursue. In this regard, he mentioned the B70 bomber, the Skybolt air-launched missile, and the technologically-overtaken Nike Zeus antimissile system.

Murphy Defends Grand Jury System

Responding to charges that the grand jury system was outdated and that it should be abolished, Kingston attorney Vernon Murphy urged that a watchdog committee be set up to protect the institution, and that legislation be sponsored for the establishment of a permanent staff for the grand jury to free it from sole reliance upon the district attorney.

Murphy also suggested that a suitable jury room be constructed for Ulster County petit juries "in place of the inadequate and undignified space now allotted them in the cellar and hallways of the County courthouse," said Murphy.

Murphy delivered his talk before the Grand Jurors Association of Ulster County at the group's November meeting.

Murphy outlined the history of the grand jury to the members present and established it as the oldest institution "of any significance in modern society, predating the Magna Charta (1215), the Declaration of Independence (1776), the Constitution of the United States (1787), even the Presidency."

The Ulster County lawyer said that the grand jury "was an evolution of the earliest concepts of peace and freedom adopted in England from the modes of trial of Roman Anglo-Saxons and Anglo-Normans and Scandinavian invaders from Norway and Denmark."

"The jury system as an entity emerged during the reign of Henry II (1154-1159), and, by 1368, a modern grand jury was established and has not materially changed since."

Murphy declared that the system "put an end to trial by combat, ordeal, and compurgation in the western world, and pointed out that the absence of the grand jury system has preserved trial by ordeal in the dictatorships of the left or right which will flourish in the east." Attorney Murphy said that no person could be held to answer for a capital crime unless on an indictment by such a jury.

"The second purpose of the grand jury, not generally acknowledged by law enforcement agents," said Murphy, "is the role of the jury in compelling the production of evidence and the testimony of witnesses who would otherwise not cooperate in criminal enforcement. As a practical matter, the grand jury process is the only way criminal law can be administered in a situation which, very fortunately, prohibits self-incrimination."

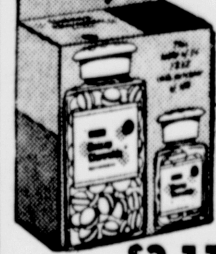

A third purpose of the grand jury "is to make presentations of malfeasance and nonfeasance of public officials and organized crime which are non-indictable but which alert the community to specific problems requiring correction."

"Last, but not least (the system) gives the people the chance to participate in government," said Murphy, adding, "Every year, more than 5,000 citizens are engaged as grand jurors in New York State and the impact of these citizens' knowledge and interest in public affairs is enough to assure enormous respect for law and order."

Murphy did point out that a U.S. senator described grand juries as a "fifth wheel" in the administration of criminal justice and he told the audience that grand juries "are often at the mercy of prosecuting attorneys anxious to make a record, and that it is a common jest among district attorneys that all that is needed is a person's calling card to indict him."

He told the audience that they could not be complacent. "It can happen here," he said.

Helpful Hints

A few cooked snap beans left over in the refrigerator. Chop them fine and heat with canned tomato soup. Tastes good and stretches the soup!

When you are frying apples to serve with pork or poultry, you may want to sweeten the apples with molasses instead of sugar. Nice flavor change!

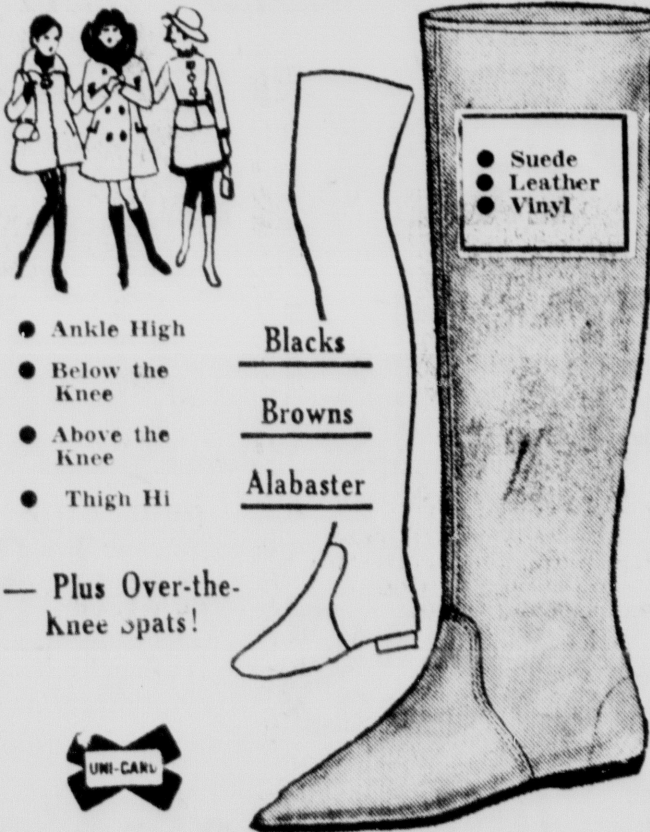

Serve those cooked carrots with sauteed mushrooms for an interesting vegetable dish.

Cream of celery soup, diluted with a little milk and heated, makes a good sauce for snap beans, green peas or broccoli.

You may find that your youngster enjoys mashed potato mixed with another vegetable—carrots, beets, peas or green beans.

Suddenly Your Silver Polish Is Obsolete!

Your silver's worst enemy "tarnish" has been defeated. Hagerty chemistry gives you a new Silver Care Team that works like magic — one easy application of new Silversmith's Polish removes tarnish, makes silver shine, and locks out tarnish for months and months. Simple dusting with Silversmith's Gloves keeps it shining and replenishes the tarnish barrier. In test after test, this new Silver Care Team has been proven conclusively to prevent tarnish 10, 20, or 30 times longer than any competing product tested. It's so effective in preventing tarnish that it literally makes all other silver polishes obsolete! Hagerty Silversmith's Polish — 8 oz. only 2.00; 12 oz. only $3.00. Silversmith's Gloves — $1.40 per pair.

It's as easy as 1, 2, 3!

1 First, clean your silver with HAGERTY Silversmith's Polish. The Polish produces an effective invisible barrier to tarnish-causing elements.

2 Then, each time you dust your silver, use the darker, impregnated sides of the gloves to invisibly shut out tarnish-causing elements . . . dust regularly to restore the original tarnish barrier.

3 Twirl gloves around for final gentle polishing, remove excess tarnish-preventing chemical . . . buff to a gleaming lustre.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:
When I'm working with nylon net, regular straight pins just won't hold the material until I finish the cutting. In desperation, I used some small wire hair pins, the kind with the waves in the center, and they are perfect.
The hair pins stay in place until you remove them and they don't harm the net in any way whatsoever.
Mrs. J. L. N.

Dear Heloise:
This is my solution to those messy containers we use to save cooking grease in.
I place a one or two-pound coffee can inside an attractive three-pound coffee canister and replace the lid on the larger can.
This sets on my stove and when needed, I pour used grease into the smaller can inside. When the small can is full, I put a plastic lid on it and discard it.
By pouring fats into the inside can, I don't drip it on my stove nor does grease run down the side and mess up the bottom of the larger can.
Mrs. Odell

Dear Heloise:
The secret for preventing windows from sweating during cold weather, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is to prevent the build-up of humidity in warm houses. Condensation of moisture will form on areas that are not insulated against the colder temperatures outside.
They suggest putting on storm windows, installing a ceiling vent fan in the kitchen and bathroom to carry off moisture from cooking, washing and drying clothes, and when taking a bath.
They also say ventilating the house by opening windows or doors occasionally is another answer.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:
When I'm working with nylon net, regular straight pins just won't hold the material until I finish the cutting. In desperation, I used some small wire hair pins, the kind with the waves in the center, and they are perfect.

The hair pins stay in place until you remove them and they don't harm the net in any way whatsoever.

Mrs. J. L. N.

Dear Heloise:
This is my solution to those messy containers we use to save cooking grease in.

I place a one- or two-pound coffee can inside an attractive three-pound coffee canister and replace the lid on the larger can.

By pouring fats into the inside can, I don't drip it on my stove nor does grease run down the side and mess up the bottom of the larger can.

Mrs. Odell

Dear Heloise:
The secret for preventing windows from sweating during cold weather, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is to prevent the build-up of humidity in warm houses. Condensation of moisture will form on areas that are not insulated against the colder temperatures outside.

They suggest putting on storm windows, installing a ceiling vent fan in the kitchen and bathroom to carry off moisture from cooking, washing and drying clothes, and when taking a bath.

They also say ventilating the house by opening windows or doors occasionally is another answer.

What Killed 'Uncle' After 3-Year Run?

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Was it the supremely diabolical plot by the agency of evil, Thrush? Or was it merely anemia of the ratings that killed "The Man from Uncle"?

Robert Vaughn, who has been thwarting Thrush for 3½ years in the title role of the MGM-NBC television series, suspects the ratings were the real culprit. Whatever the cause, "UNCLE" makes an ignominious midseason departure from the network in January. The series will shortly be popping up on local stations via syndication.

It was fun while it lasted. Vaughn as Napoleon Solo and British actor David McCallum as Iliya Kuryakin became the television equivalents of matinee idols and were mobbed on personal appearances. They mentored the United Nations headquarters in New York was flooded with inquiries about the organization. Commenting on the show's closing, Vaughn opined: "I think the fad dissipated itself, just as all fads must. The movie market was inundated with spy-looted by the phony tag at the end of the show acknowledging the cooperation of the 'United Command for Law and Enforcement'—'Wild Wild West' and others."

Two Charged

Two Kingston men were arrested Wednesday by Ulster County Investigator Harold T. Bowers and Senior Investigator Edward Shannon of the Lake Katrine BCI unit on a charge of reckless endangerment. They were Roscoe Playford, 23, 405 Hasbrouck Avenue and Ronald Hornbeck, 22, 66 Pine Street. It was charged they were shooting across the highway at Eddyville. Before Town of Ulster Justice Arthur A. Reilly they pleaded guilty to a lesser charge, disorderly conduct. A fine of $25 each or 25 days in jail was imposed and the two were given until Saturday to pay the fine.

Vaughn agreed that the switch of time periods from Friday to Monday did not help his show's chances—"Our audience wasn't able to find us."

His personal reaction to "UNCLE's" end: "I'm glad it's over, but I'm sorry for those who were put out of work because of it. As for myself, I profited career-wise, money-wise and otherwise because of the show. I have now put in almost five years in television—I did 'The Lieutenant' for a year before 'UNCLE'—and that's enough."

"Now I want to do feature films. I can work half the time for twice the money that I earned in television. If I made two pictures a year, I would have six months left for my other activities."

TRIBUNAL TALKS — U. S. "Black Power" advocate Stokely Carmichael (right) and another unidentified observer get their heads together at International (Bertrand Russell) War Crimes Tribunal in session, in Denmark, Wednesday. It was fun while it lasted. Vaughn as Napoleon Solo and British actor David McCallum as Illya Kuryakin became the television equivalents of matinee idols and were mobbed on personal appearances. They made many such tours in the first season, and their efforts played a big role in assuring a renewal for the series, which took time to build its audience. Teen-agers and collegiates provided the core of "UNCLE's" popularity. Some were fooled by the phony tag at the end of the show acknowledging the cooperation of the "United Command for Law and Enforcement."

Two Kingston men were arrested Wednesday by Ulster County Investigator Harold T. Bowers and Senior Investigator Edward Shannon of the Lake Katrine BCI unit on a charge of reckless endangerment. They were Roscoe Playford, 23, 405 Hasbrouck Avenue and Ronald

Commenting on the show's closing, Vaughn opined: "I think the fad dissipated itself, just as all fads must. The movie market was inundated with spy satires of the 'Our Man Flint' type. Television had its own cycle of satires with 'Get Smart,' 'Wild Wild West' and others."

Hornbeck, 22, 66 Pine Street. It was charged they were shooting across the highway at Eddyville. Before Town of Ulster Justice Arthur A. # State U. Swimmers Set for New Season

State University swimming coach, Art Stockin, says his swimmers hope to improve on last season's 6-1 record, but pre-season estimates are the Hawks will have to scramble to do the job.

The Hawks open their season with a home meet against the powerful Long Island University team tonight at 7 o'clock.

"We will find out in a hurry just about what we have for the new season," said Coach Stockin.

Graduation and transfers have left the eight-man squad short of experienced manpower.

Co-Captains Back

Coach Stockin will rely heavily on co-captains Fred Sachs and Rich Bailey. Sachs, a sophomore, is holder of the pool record for the 200-yard freestyle, while senior Bailey boasts records in the 1000-yard freestyle and 200 yard backstroke.

Senior David Green, NCAA Atlantic Coast finalist in the 200-yards breaststroke competition, and Art Kramer, last year's SUNYAC (State University of New York Conference) one-meter diving champion, also will figure strongly in the team's fortunes.

Sophs Return

Robinson Backs Sports Boycott

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Jackie Robinson, who cracked major league baseball's color line in 1947, was on record today as supporting a move by some Negro athletes to boycott the Olympic Games next year.

Robinson, ex-Brooklyn Dodger star and an adviser to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, told Sports Editor Bob McNamara of WTEN-TV.

"I feel we got to use whatever means to get our rights here in this country."

Robinson was asked to comment on the decision of about 200 Negro athletes last week in Los Angeles to urge all Negro athletes involved to boycott the U.S. Olympic team.

The group included UCLA basketball star Lew Alcindor and some of the nation's top collegiate trackmen.

The object, the group says, is to dramatize Negro sentiment over the plight of the American Negro.

Kickers' Second Half: Some Changes in Order

German-American Soccer Association officials having decreed that the second half of the 1967-68 League Division must begin at once, the Kingston Sport Club Kickers will be at home Sunday.

Home is Oehler's Mountain Lodge and the opposition will be the West New York team. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Coach Bob Graves, satisfied with the Kickers' fine 7 wins, 2 ties and a loss in the first half, expects to introduce two, possibly three, new players in Sunday's starting lineup. Both newcomers are State University College (New Paltz) players — Francisco Alexander, who will start at the wing, and Aldo Forte.

A Canadian import, John Seitz, may get a shot at the goalie position, where Coach Graves is somewhat less than satisfied with Timo Lickoski's recent performances.

The Hawks have scheduled 13 dual meets, winding up the season with the SUNYAC competition, March 12. Seven non-conference opponents are listed. The big guns—high scoring Gino Ventriglia, Elliott Obbye, Asare and Reiner Schwebel—are expected to produce constant harassment for the West New York goalie.

"We'll have the five fastest men on the team on the front line," said the soft spoken mentor. "That should give us maximum mobility and offensive power. We could rack up a good total, if playing conditions are good."

"Like in football, the weather can be a great leveler," Graves explained. "If it's a bad, windy day, the poor team has the advantage. But we have to keep moving. The indoor tournament will be coming up soon and I have to pick out our six best players. The next few games will tell."

In the only other League Division game Sunday, Poughkeepsie BW (4-0-6) in first half, plays at home against Yonkers, the third place team. Meanwhile, play continues in the American Czechs loss, will be on the bench along with Jon Weber and Walt Grasmeyer.

UCCC Rips Pharmacy Five, 96-85

Ulster County Community College has a gifted basketball shooter in Jumpin' Joe Uhl, as everyone knows.

But this 1967-68 edition of Senators has scoring balance, too, as was abundantly evident in last night's 96 to 85 romp over Albany College of Pharmacy at Christian Brothers Academy gym.

Uhl led the team with 21 points, as expected, but no less than five other players produced double-figure efforts as the Senators rolled to their second straight win of the season—six in a row with a four-game carryover from last season.

Grab Early Lead

Ulster jumped off to a 12-5 lead at the outset of the game, Albany came to within four points, 21-17, but that was the closest the Pharmacy was for the rest of the night.

By halftime, UCCC had built up a 56-40 margin and streaked to a 71-50 bulge before Coach Mike Perry lifted the whole first team with 4:38 left on the clock.

Leon Hanna was runnerup to Uhl with 18 points, despite a nine-minute respite on the bench in the first half when he ran into early foul difficulties.

Other double figure shooters were Rod Chando with 15 points, Bill Zilliox 12 and Bill Boines and Frank Roselli, 11 apiece.

Defensive Lapses

Coach Perry, however, was far from satisfied with the UCCC defense.

"That is evident from the score," he said. "Frank Roselli was the best player in the game. His defense was the best. Nobody else played good defense."

In addition to his 11 points, Roselli led in assists with 4 and his 10 rebounds were only one less than the 11 turned in by Leon Hanna and Bill Boines.

der rimming 17 points and Dick Davidson next best with 14.

The Senators now turn their attention to a rugged assignment against Fashion Institute Tech of New York Friday night at the municipal auditorium.

"We'll have to put it all together to beat this team," said Perry. "They gave us a rugged battle last year and are reported to be even stronger this year."

A major rhubard developed over the officiating in last year's game against FIT but Perry anticipates no recurrence tomorrow night.

Hawk Wrestlers Open 2nd Season With Rockland

State University College grapplers at New Paltz open their second varsity season Saturday at home against Rockland Community College.

Last year's team, the first ever for the Hawks, completed their first season with a 6-1 record, and Coach Joe Owens loses only one man from that squad. Although the team's experience will make it tougher this year, the schedule also gets more rugged.

Co-captains Walt Cook (130) and Larry Berman (150) are back from last year. Cook, a junior, and Berman, a senior on the squad, are both fine wrestlers.

Other grapplers on the squad are John Bender, John Ford, Dennis George, Richard Gross, Allan Papini, Allan Reutershan, Miliard Roper and Richard Schneider.

76ers Are Stumbling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Is there anything wrong with the Philadelphia 76ers, champions of the National Basketball Association?

A year ago at this time they were rolling merrily along at a 19-2 clip. Today they are 15-7 and second to the Boston Celtics in the Eastern Division.

"I don't know what the answer is," said Coach Alex Hannum after the 76ers had taken a 113-95 whipping from the San Francisco Warriors at the Philadelphia Spectrum Wednesday night.

And big 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain, who scored only 12 points, nine in the last five minutes, asserted, "There's nothing wrong with me."

It was the seventh straight victory for San Francisco and moved the Warriors within one-half game of the first-place St. Louis Hawks in the Western Division.

New York scored a 119-99 road victory over Cincinnati and Detroit, playing at home, defeated Los Angeles 127-123 in the other scheduled NBA games.

The last time the Warriors played in Philadelphia they held Chamberlain to just one point. This time 6-11 Nate Thurmond of the Warriors held Chamberlain to three field goals, the first of which came with five minutes left and the 76ers behind by 16 points.

Jeff Mullins, with 22 points, and Fred Hetzel, with 20, topped the Warriors. Chet Walker got 24 and Luke Jackson 23 to top the 76ers.

State U. Swimmers Set for New Season

State University swimming coach, Art Stockin, says his swimmers hope to improve on last season's 6-6-1 record, but pre-season estimates are the Hawks will have to scramble to do the job.

The Hawks open their season with a home meet against the powerful Long Island University team tonight at 7 o'clock.

Co-Captains Back

Coach Stockin will rely heavily on co-captains Fred Sachs and Rich Bailey. Sachs, a sophomore, is holder of the pool record for the 200-yard freestyle, while senior Bailey boasts records in the 1000-yard freestyle and 200 yard backstroke.

Senior David Green, NCAA Atlantic Coast finalist in the 200-yards breaststroke competition, and Art Kramer, last year's SUNYAC (State University of New York Conference) one-meter diving champion, also will figure strongly in the team's fortunes.

Sophs Return

Bonavena and Ellis To Tangle Saturday

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Argentina's Oscar Bonavena, the "Second Bull of the Pampas," and hometown boy Jimmy Ellis battle next Saturday for survival in the World Boxing Association's heavyweight boxing elimination tournament.

The winner of the 12-round bout will take on the winner of the Jerry Quarry-Thad Spencer fight for the WBA heavyweight championship, left vacant when Cassius Clay was stripped of the title.

The bout is shaping up as a contest between the brute strength of Bonavena, described by his manager as "a bigger version of Rocky Marciano," and the blazing speed of Ellis, who learned his trade as a sparring partner for Clay.

Both camps are predicting victory but Angelo Dundee, Ellis' trainer, is more cautious.

"We realize we're going to have a tough fight," Dundee said. "But we're going to win because I've got the most bonafide hungry fighter in this tournament."

"Jimmy's got five kids and his wife is expecting, and you can't get much more incentive than that."

Dundee said he got a good look at Bonavena when he took out Germany's Karl Mildenberger in an opening-round bout. "I said then we could beat him and I'm not changing my prediction now," Dundee said.

Ellis simply says he's going to win the tournament because he's the best fighter. "I let my fighting do the talking," he said recently.

Bonavena, first Argentine contender since Luis Firpo came out of the Pampas in the 1920s, is more extroverted and dead-sure of victory. He says he'll knock Ellis out in the second round.

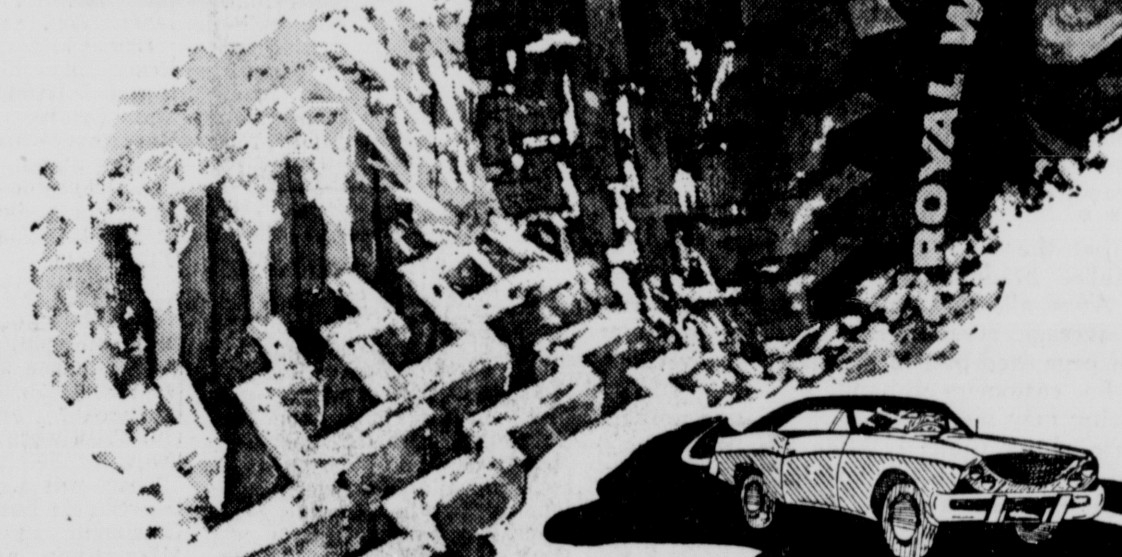

Bonavena, the South American champion, says he is the only tough fighter in the tournament and regards Ellis as "only a sparring partner."

Detractors of Bonavena's fighting ability say the Argentine is a slow, plodding fighter with a good punch but no boxing finesse.

By CHARLES J. TIANO

"Bill Robinson has been hitting the ball hard in the Florida Instructional League where he is working out as a third baseman," said the New York Yankee report from Fort Lauderdale.

Robinson, a complete bust in the Yankees' 1967 outfield, had played a little third base previously, but this was his first serious effort at the position.

Out of Mexico City where the major league owners are staging their annual maneuvers, comes another interesting item, almost implausible on the first take.

It says that Lee McPhail, the Bombers' principal horse trader, is willing to peddle a first line pitcher for an experienced third baseman or shortstop, or both.

*****

SPLENDID NAMES are tossed into the speculation — magnificent Maury Wills of Pittsburgh by way of Los Angeles, Luis Aparicio (safely back with the White Sox) and Bob Aspromonte, the young old timer of the Houston Astros. For any of these, the Yankees apparently were willing to trade Mel Stottlemyre, Fritz Peterson, Al Downing or Fred Talbot. If there are any other "first line" pitchers on the Yankee roster, we haven't seen them lately.

What does all this familiar baseball jargon mean to Mike Ferraro of Kingston? It could mean a melancholy autumn and a long, hard winter. The lad is still on the Yankees' official 40-man roster but his future is shrouded in doubt.

YOU CAN'T COUNT Mike out of the Yankee plans until he goes through what could be an agonizing spring training ritual. The Yanks are playing their last option with Ferraro, who becomes subject to the draft at the conclusion of the 1968 season. They may have made a mental commitment on that score already, but let us await future developments.

When the instructional league ended in Florida, Robinson, despite his brisk, getaway was bogged down at .255, a substantial improvement over his .198 for the 1967 stadium season, but hardly the kind of performance to make the front office lyrical about his future.

From the official Yankee viewpoint there is a substantial difference in the club investments in these two young men. The Yankees paid Ferraro a bonus in excess of $10,000, when they signed him. But they gave up Cleto Boyer, a peerless third baseman, in the transaction that brought Robinson to the stadium.

Robinson had been Player of the Year in the International League but never lived up to his promise. The Yankees envisioned him as a permanent occupant of left field. They took a puff from the dream pipe and saw Robinson in left, Joe Pepitone in center and Steve Whitaker in right. An outfield trio to endure, but it hasn't worked out that way.

The Yankees have further complicated Ferraro's future by drafting a 20-year-old third baseman, Ken Polsen, who batted .226 at Toronto in the International League. The book on Polsen is that he has a hitch in his swing but the Yankees consider him a good, long range prospect.

*****

It could be that the large throngs at Fort Lauderdale stadium and Yankee Stadium will uncover some hidden talent in Polsen. After all, he endured a season at Toronto where the daily average attendance was under 3,500 and caused a demise of organized ball in that city. A guy can get lonesome with so few customers on hand.

All the foregoing may seem sort of speculative nonsense, but we can be sure of one thing. If Mike Ferraro makes the team, he must do it on his own this spring.

If he doesn't fit into the Yankees' future plans, we feel they should trade him to another club. In the meantime, Mike knows that our town is rooting for him.

Austin Retains Scoring Acumen From B.C. Days

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Austin used to score many key points for Boston College in his undergraduate days.

Now a pro, he did the same for the New Jersey Americans in the American Basketball Association Wednesday night to cement a 106-101 victory over the Anaheim Amigos at Teaneck, N.J.

Austin, who had been taken out earlier, came off the bench and scored the last seven points to clinch a second half rally that ended a three game losing streak for the Americans.

Anaheim held a 16 point lead at 64-48 before the Americans' rally started. Dan Anderson's tap in put New Jersey ahead for good at 93-92 and Austin's seven consecutive points sealed it up.

Tony Jackson was high scorer for New Jersey with 31 points. Steve Chubin topped the Amigos with 30.

The Houston Mavericks chalked up their fourth straight home victory by beating the Oakland Oaks 102-91. The Kentucky Colonels also won at home, exploding for 42 points in the last quarter to whip the Dallas Chaparrals 111-85 at Louisville in the other ABA game scheduled.

Oakland rallied to within one point at 83-82 with six minutes left, but Houston pulled out of danger with a 10-point burst. Art Becker paced Houston with 21 points. Rod Franz topped Oakland with 28.

Louie Dampier, with 22 points, and Bobby Rascoe, with 21, combined for 43 points to lead Kentucky over Dallas. Bob Verga was high for the Chaparrals with 24.

Csonka, Dowling Lead All-East

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Csonka, Syracuse's record-smashing fullback, and Yale's 1-2 backfield punch of Brian Dowling and Calvin Hill share top honors with a five-man contingent from nationally ranked Penn State on The Associated Press' 1967 All-East college football team.

Csonka, the sensational, 230-pound senior who churned out 1,127 rushing yards en route to a flock of Syracuse records, and Ivy League standouts Dowling, Hill and Vic Gatto of Harvard were named to the All-East backfield today. Penn State, meanwhile, nailed three offensive and two defensive spots on the 23-man squad.

The 10th-ranked Nittany Lions placed tight end Ted Kwalick, tackle Rich Buzin and center Bill Lenkaitis on the offensive unit. Picked on the defensive first team were safetymen Tim Montgomery and linebacker Dennis Onkotz—the only sophomore cited.

Csonka, the nation's No. 5 ground-gainer, is one of four repeaters from the 1966 All-East squad. R.B. Taylor, Navy's elusive pass-catching star, defensive end Bill Dow, also of Navy, and 245-pound defensive tackle Ray Norton of Boston University are the other holdovers.

Three for Army

Powerful Army landed three stalwarts on the first team—linebackers Bud Neswischeny and Jim Bevans and kicking specialist Nick Kurilko.

Tackle Hank Paulson of Dartmouth and guards Mike Donovan of Northeastern and Al Bersin of Harvard complete the offensive alignment. End Scott Lewendon of Rutgers, tackle Dennis Fitzgibbons of Syracuse, middle guard Glenn Grieco of Holy Cross and backs Gordie Rule of Dartmouth and Dick Farley of Boston U. are the other defensive choices.

Aside from Onkotz, the only underclassmen on the squad are Dowling, Hill, Gatto, Kwalick and Fitzgibbons—all juniors.

Csonka, who teamed with Floyd Little a year ago to give Syracuse the most potent inside-outside attacking force in the country, took off on his own this fall and paced the Orangemen to an 8-2 season mark.

The 6-foot-3 land-rover from Stow, Ohio, successor to Syracuse greats Jim Brown, Ernie Davis, Jim Nance and Little, finished his college career last Saturday just 66 yards short of the 3,000-yard mark. He bettered Little's school records for single-game, single-season and career yardage after breaking into the Orange line-up as a soph linebacker.

He averaged 26 carries per-game and five yards per-carry in three varsity seasons, going over the 100-yard mark in 15 games.

"Csonka's a menace to all defenses," says Pitt Coach Dave Hart. "He's unstoppable."

Quarterback Dowling and halfback Hill shook off injuries and combined to lead Yale to its first Ivy League title since 1960. The Elis dropped their season opener to Holy Cross while Dowling nursed a broken bone in his right wrist, then reeled off eight straight victories.

Dowling, a 6-foot-2, 199-pound strongboy from Cleveland Heights, Ohio, didn't play until the fourth game. But he still rolled up 891 yards passing and running. He capped Yale's season with a 66-yard TD pass that beat Harvard in the closing minutes last weekend.

A Born Winner

He's a born winner," says Yale Coach Carmen Cozza. He gives us the spark and leadership."

Dowling's closing rush was just enough to edge Navy's John Cartwright for the first-team quarterback berth. Army's Steve Lindell and 6-foot-4 Greg Landry of Massachusetts also received heavy support from members of the All-East selection panel.

Hill, a muscular, 215-pounder who can pass on the option as well as rip off yardage on the ground, and Gatto, a compact 5-6, 185-pound swiftie, were near unanimous choices for the half-back positions. Gatto rambled for 581 yards in 143 carries for Harvard. Hill picked up 358 yards in 73 trips for the Elis, averaging 4.9 yards per-carry. soph linebacker.

Aparicio Happy to Be Back "Home"

Yanks Almost Landed Him

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Little Luis Aparicio, the speedy shortstop who once helped the Chicago White Sox win a pennant, returns to Comiskey Park after a five-year absence in one of a dozen trades involving 19 players made at the winter baseball meetings.

"That is good news. Wait until I tell my wife," Aparicio said when Chicago General Manager Eddie Shore called him in Maracaibo, Venezuela, to break the news.

The White Sox got Aparicio back from Baltimore Wednesday in a six-player deal designed to solve problems for both clubs. The Venezuelan will aid the White Sox defense while Baltimore tried to strengthen its pitching staff which collapsed last season.

Chicago gave up pitchers Bruce Howard and Roger Nelson and infielder Don Buford. The Orioles dealt outfielder Russ Snyder and John Matias, a minor league first baseman. The Orioles had earlier traded knuckleball pitcher Eddie Fisher to Cleveland for lefty John O'Donoghue.

Only Light Action

The Baltimore-Chicago swap and one involving Cleveland and the California Angels were the only action on the trading block Wednesday although several clubs still were looking to make deals.

There was a rumor of a trade between the Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati in which catcher Mike Ryan and pitcher Bill Rohr would go to the Reds in exchange for pitcher Sammy Ellis and catcher John Edwards.

Baltimore was negotiating with several clubs for Aparicio, 33, confident that young Mark Belanger can step into the vacancy at shortstop.

The New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers both felt they were close to making a deal for Aparicio.

Harry Dalton, Baltimore's director of player personnel, said a trade with the Tigers or the Yanks would have meant giving up some of the Orioles' top young prospects and he wasn't prepared to do that.

Lee MacPhail, Yankee vice president and general manager said his deal for Aparicio would have involved three teams —

New York, Washington and Baltimore.

Key on Shortstops

Shortstop has been a key in major transactions announced so far. Zoilo Versalles was the major factor in the big Los Angeles-Minnesota swap Tuesday which still had tongues wagging. Versalles and pitcher Mudcat Grant went to the Dodgers in exchange for catcher John Roseboro and pitchers Ron Perranoski and Bob Miller.

Cleveland sent Chuck Hinton to the California Angels for Jose Cardenal in an exchange of right-hand hitting outfielders.

ger," said Baltimore Manager Hank Bauer. Aparicio's batting average fell from .275 to .233 last season.

Bauer said Howard, 24, was a deciding factor for Baltimore in the deal despite his 3-10 record last season with Chicago.

"Howard has pitched good against us. He has a good slider and will fit into our starting rotation with Jim Palmer, Dave McNally, Tom Phoebus and Jim Hardin," Bauer said.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Little Luis Aparicio, the speedy shortstop who once helped the Chicago White Sox win a pennant, returns to Comiskey Park after a five-year absence in one of a dozen trades involving 13 players made at the winter baseball meetings.

"That is good news. Wait until I tell my wife," Aparicio said when Chicago General Manager Eddie Short called him in Maracaibo, Venezuela, to break the news.

The White Sox got Aparicio back from Baltimore Wednesday in a six-player deal designed to solve problems for both clubs. The Venezuelan will add the White Sox defense while Baltimore tried to strengthen its pitching staff which collapsed last season.

Chicago gave up pitchers Bruce Howard and Roger Nelson and infielder Don Buford. The Orioles dealt outfielder Russ Snyder and John Matias, a minor league first baseman. The Orioles had earlier traded knuckleball pitcher Eddie Fisher to Cleveland for lefty John O'Donoghue.

Only Light Action

The Baltimore-Chicago swap and one involving Cleveland and the California Angels were the only action on the trading block Wednesday although several clubs still were looking to make deals.

There was a rumor of a trade between the Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati in which catcher Mike Ryan and pitcher Bill Rohr would go to the Reds in exchange for pitcher Sammy Ellis and catcher John Edwards.

Baltimore was negotiating with several clubs for Aparicio, 33, confident that young Mark Belanger can step into the vacancy at shortstop.

The New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers both felt they were close to making a deal for Aparicio.

Harry Dalton, Baltimore's director of player personnel, said a trade with the Tigers or the Yankees would have meant giving up some of the Orioles' top young prospects and he wasn't prepared to do that.

Lee MacPhail, Yankee vice president and general manager, said his deal for Aparicio would have involved three teams —

New York, Washington and Baltimore.

Key on Shortstops

Shortstop has been a key in major transactions announced so far. Zoilo Versalles was the major factor in the big Los Angeles-Minnesota swap Tuesday which still had tongues wagging. Versalles and pitcher Mudcat Grant went to the Dodgers in exchange for catcher John Roseboro and pitchers Ron Perranoski and Bob Miller.

Cleveland sent Chuck Hinton to the California Angels for Jose Cardenal in an exchange of right hand hitting outfielders.

Bucyk's One-Man Goal: Keep Those Bruins on Top

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — John Bucyk is anxious to stand alone as Boston's top goal scorer of all time, but he's even more eager to help keep the surprising Bruins at the top of the National Hockey League's East Division standings.

The veteran winger scored twice in Wednesday night's 5-1 victory over Minnesota to tie Hall of Famer Milt Schmidt as Boston's top career goal producer. He might have had another, but chose instead to pass off to teammate John McKenzie for a surer shot.

The score was 1-1 early in the second period when Bucyk took a pass from center Fred Stanfield at the left of the North Stars' net. It looked like a probable goal, but McKenzie was all alone on the right for a certain one, so Bucyk slid the puck to him.

Later Bucyk banged in his 12th and 13th goals of the season to nail down the victory and keep the Bruins two points ahead of Toronto, which defeated Montreal 2-1.

"Records—I got a lot of time to break those," Bucyk said. "When you've got a man in front of an open net the way McKenzie was, you have to make sure."

Bucyk tipped in his own rebound for his first goal and managed to get control of a bouncing puck and shove it past goalie Cesare Maniago for his second—bringing forth a lengthy ovation when it was announced that he had tied Schmidt's Boston career mark of 229.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, Toronto edged Montreal 2-1; Detroit topped New York 3-1; Chicago beat Philadelphia 3-1; Pittsburgh drubbed Oakland 6-1 and St. Louis shaded Los Angeles 3-2.

Rochester Area Buses Halted by Drivers' Strike

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Buses serving 120,000 city and Monroe County residents daily came to a halt here early today after 300 unionized bus drivers and mechanics voted unanimously Wednesday to strike the Rochester Transit Corporation. The strike promised to affect commuters and school children as well as shoppers just as the Christmas rush was beginning. A total of 420 drivers and mechanics were idled as the strike began at midnight Wednesday and the last buses rolled into the company garage at 2 a.m. today.

Members of Division 282 of the Amalgamated Transit Union reportedly had been seeking an increase of 20 cents an hour in a new contract. The company offered a two-year contract of 11 cents an hour, six cents November next year, and six cents more in May 1969.

The proposal was rejected by the local. Negotiators for both sides then talked for more than an hour late Wednesday but were unable to reach an agreement.

A strike for Oct. 31 was planned originally by Division 282 but later extended until Nov. 5. The union failed to file a 30-day strike notice required by the Taft-Hartley Act forcing another extension.

Questions, Answers on Federal Tax

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—I've taken over my mother's support from my brother. Who gets to claim her as a dependent this year?

A—Under the support test for claiming a dependent, the person who provides more than half the total support for the calendar year is entitled to claim the exemption. To determine whether you or your brother qualify, add up your mother's food, clothing, shelter and other expenses for the year. Then find out whether you or your brother supplied more than half of them.

If neither you nor your brother furnished more than half of this support but your combined contributions totaled over half the support, then you may want to consider the multiple support agreement. Such an agreement enables one of you to claim your mother as a dependent providing certain conditions are met.

Be sure to check this provision of the law, as well as the other dependency tests, before you file your return next year.

Q—I was just billed for a tax I've already paid. What should I do about it?

A—Return the bill along with a copy of your canceled check or money order. Frequently IRS receives payments that cannot be identified and this might have happened in your case. Another possibility is that your payment was received too late in our processing cycle to make the necessary adjustment in the billing notices.

A good practice to follow when paying a tax bill, is to put your Social Security number on the check or money order and return the notice with your payment.

Q—Is there any penalty for failing to report tip income to your employer?

A—Yes, there may be a penalty of up to 50 per cent.

If you have tip income of $20 or more a month while working for any one employer then be sure you report it to this employer each month. For details on this reporting requirement, send a post card to your IRS district director and ask for a free copy of Document No. 5640, Reporting Your Tips for Federal Tax Purposes.

Q—I have an expense account to cover the traveling I do for my company. How do I handle this for tax purposes?

A—The general rule is that reimbursements and allowances you receive for expenses incurred in connection with your employment must be included in income. However, if you are required to account to your company for your expenses and your reimbursement does not exceed these expenses, then you do not have to report this on your income tax return.

If you account to your employer and the reimbursement exceeds your expenses then the excess must be reported as income on your return. But if your allowable expenses exceed your reimbursements, report the reimbursements as income but also deduct the expenses.

Q—To help promote goodwill for my new business, I plan to give gifts to my best customers this Christmas. Is it true that there is a limit on what you can spend for these gifts?

A—The law limits the amount you may deduct on business gifts to a total of $25 for any one individual during the tax year. For the purpose of this provision, the customer and his spouse are generally considered one individual.

That means you can't give a $25 gift to a customer and a $25 gift to his wife and be able to deduct them both as a business expense.

Gifts which cost $4 or less are not subject to this $25 rule if your name is clearly and permanently imprinted on them and they are distributed in quantity. This would cover items like pens and calendars.

The clergymen agreed to send delegates to Washington to declare their views to a joint congressional committee studying the anti-poverty legislation.

Dear Abby

Girl's Uncle Not So Funny

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl with a big problem. Please don't laugh, Abby, but my problem is that I am ticklish. And I mean like if someone just tickles me a little bit, I practically go into hysterics. Of course nearly everyone who knows me knows about how ticklish I am, but my uncle in particular takes advantage of this, and he will get a hold of me and tickle me until I am so played out from laughing and screaming that I always end up crying. My parents aren't much help. Abby, and I can't handle this alone. Please tell me what to do.

TICKLISH

DEAR TICKLISH: Being ticklish is no laughing matter, and I sympathize with you. Your uncle sounds like a first class sadistic boog, who's probably just giving you a little warning that if he so much as puts a hand on you, you will clout him with a lamp, or whatever is handy. Then go ahead and do it. No jury would convict you.

DEAR ABBY: I am 38, have four practically grown children, and I have a problem, the likes of which you've never heard. I guarantee you.

Six months ago I married a 47-year-old man also divorced with three children. I had been a divorcee for six years. My husband assured me I had nothing to worry about because he had an operation nine years before that made it impossible for him to father any more children. Naturally I took his word for it. Well, something went wrong because I am four months pregnant. My doctor confirmed it. I am just furious. Abby, my husband went back to the doctor who performed that operation on him, and the doctor said that the operation is 100% foolproof, there are no failures, and if I am pregnant, the baby can't be my husband's. Abby, I KNOW the baby can't be anybody else's.

Tell me, are those operations on men always successful? If so, how come I am PG? Can a blood test prove that my husband is the father of my baby? If he is, can my husband sue his doctor?

PG AT 38

DEAR PG: The operation your husband had is called a "vasectomy." If properly performed, it is 100 per cent foolproof, but unfortunately it is not always properly performed. If your husband is indeed your baby's father (and I believe you when you say he is) then he should go to a urologist for a "sperm test." This will show be-Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR JEALOUS: Jealousy is a "sickness." The twin germs which usually cause it are lack of self-confidence and mistrust. Don't quiz him, but let him know (good humoredly) that you think he is quite a prize and are slightly jealous. (This will be his cue to reassure you, as anyone with sense enough to fly a plane must surely know.) Frankly, I don't think you have anything to worry about. The husband who swings away from home avoids mentioning other girls.

DEAR JEALOUS: Jealousy is a "sickness." The twin germs which usually cause it are lack of self-confidence and mistrust. Don't quiz him, but let him know (good humoredly) that you think he is quite a prize and are slightly jealous. (This will be his cue to reassure you, as anyone with sense enough to fly a plane must surely know.) Frankly, I don't think you have anything to worry about. ## The Bob Hope Magic Again

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The warm, friendly and funny image projected over three decades by the remarkable Bob Hope makes it possible to pull off interesting and appealing television programs in awkward places that NBC would not wish on its deadliest rival.

The prime example, of course, is Hope's annual Christmas show—which will be filmed as usual next month while Hope and his hardy troupe are on a whirlwind tour of servicemen. Nobody—except Hope—could get away with a variety show filmed under the impossible conditions of impromptu stages and casual camera positions at camps, hospitals and on the deck of ships.

Not Exactly Ideal
On Wednesday night, Hope—whose interest in education is apparently almost as strong as his concern for our fighting men—took his show to a temporary stage set up in a large gymnasium on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles—not exactly an ideal TV studio.

The sets were practically skeletons, there was little room to dance and occasionally the lips of one of the performers were not synchronized with the prerecorded words of a song. The sketch—a college football theme, naturally, seemed to have been tossed together on short notice. Yet, somehow it worked well.

At the end of the frolic, hope delivered a short, pithy speech appealing for support of college. It was a little masterpiece.

"Run For Your Life," now in its third season on NBC, remains one of the best constructed shows on the air and its star, Ben Gazzara, one of television's most quietly effective performers.

Wednesday night's episode concluded an interesting two-part story which by using a switch on the old "Grand Hotel" plot technique, managed to tell a number of stories at one time.

The device was a multicausal crash which cost some lives and sent a number of survivors to a hospital. Our hero, Paul Bryan, had been driving the car that caused the pile-up because of a faulty mechanism—and he was playing out his drama opposing the insurance company. One victim was a young girl with a greedy uncle eager to get hold of her insurance settlement. Another vignette concerned a girl who was running away from an impossible love affair. There was even a shoot-out because a young thief was trying to retrieve some stolen money from a hiding place in one of the bandedup automobiles.

It is an intelligent action-adventure series, but, unfortunately, there's a pretty good chance that when Paul Bryan disappears from television, it will not be his fatal illness that carries him off but generally unimpressive Nielsen ratings.

New Date for 'Dolly'
ABC, for the third time, hopes last time has set a date for its Carol Channing special—Feb. 29. The first two dates were cancelled because of complications arising from a strike of union technicians against the Airplane.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como's Christmas show, NBC, 7:30-8:30 EST, the singer's first special of the season with Rosemary Clooney and Martin and Jerry. The first two dates were cancelled because of complications arising from a strike of union technicians against the Airplane.

The Bob Hope Magic Again

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The warm, friendly and funny image projected over three decades by the remarkable Bob Hope makes it possible to pull off interesting and appealing television programs in awkward places that NBC would not wish on its deadliest rival.

The prime example, of course, is Hope's annual Christmas show — which will be filmed as usual next month while Hope and his hardy troupe are on a whirlwind tour of servicemen. Nobody — except Hope — could get away with a variety show filmed under the impossible conditions of impromptu stages and casual camera positions at camps, hospitals and on the deck of ships.

Not Exactly Ideal
On Wednesday night, Hope — whose interest in education is apparently almost as strong as his concern for our fighting men — took his show to a temporary stage set up in a large gymnasium on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles — not exactly an ideal TV studio.

The sets were practically skeletons, there was little room to dance and occasionally the lips of one of the performers were not synchronized with the prerecorded words of a song. The sketch — a college football theme, naturally, seemed to have been tossed together on short notice. Yet, somehow it worked well.

At the end of the frolic, hope delivered a short, pithy speech appealing for support of colleges. It was a little masterpiece.

"Run For Your Life," now in its third season on NBC, remains one of the best constructed shows on the air and its star, Ben Gazzara, one of television's most quietly effective performers.

Wednesday night's episode concluded an interesting two-part story which by using a switch on the old "Grand Hotel" plot technique, managed to tell a number of stories at one time.

The device was a multicar crash which cost some lives and sent a number of survivors to a hospital. Our hero, Paul Bryan, had been driving the car that caused the pile-up because of a faulty mechanism — and he was playing out his drama opposing the insurance company. One victim was a young girl with a greedy uncle eager to get hold of her insurance settlement. Another vignette concerned a girl who was running away from an impossible love affair. There was even a shoot-out because a young thief was trying to retrieve some stolen money from a hiding place in one of the banged-up automobiles.

It is an intelligent action-adventure series, but, unfortunately, there's a pretty good chance that when Paul Bryan disappears from television, it will not be his fatal illness that carries him off but generally unimpressive Nielsen ratings.

New Date for 'Dolly'
ABC, for the third time, hopes last time has set a date for its Carol Channing special — Feb. 29. The first two dates were cancelled because of complications arising from a strike of union technicians against the Airplane.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como's Christmas show, NBC, 7:30-8:30 EST, the singer's first special of the season with Robby Gentry and the Jeffersons.

War on Cigarettes Aim of Health Boss

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State's ranking health official is pressing for a "war" against cigarette smoking and wants to outlaw the practice in schools and all other publicly owned buildings.

Cigarette smoking, Health Commissioner Hollis S. Ingraham declared Wednesday, has produced "an epidemic of disease unique to the 20th century."

"What man has done," he added, "he must now undo. We need another war—a war against the cigarette."

To combat the practice of cigarette smoking, he proposed intensive instruction in the schools on the hazards of smoking.

Theft Probed

An alleged theft of $27 Tuesday from a cabinet drawer at the American Plating Company, Albany Avenue Extension, is being investigated by city detectives. It was learned, Company spokesmen told officials that the money had been placed in the drawer for some time. They noted that a suspicious male seeking employment had been in the office prior to the missing money discovery. Police were notified Wednesday.

Father of Six Air Crash Victim

MADISON, N.Y. (AP) — A Marine officer from Johnstown, N.Y., the father of six children, was killed Wednesday in the crash of a Navy jet at nearby Trux Field.

The Air Force identified the man as Maj. Aloysius James Bannigan III, 34. Seriously injured in the crash was a student pilot, Marine Lt. Craig Allen Olney, 23, of Dixon, Ill.

An Air Force spokesman said the jet, on a routine cross-country training flight from Corpus Christi, Tex., was about 1,000 feet from the runway when it crashed in a field. The two men were stationed at Beesville, Tex. There had been no indication of trouble, the spokesman said. Bannigan was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Bannigan Jr. of Johnstown. His survivors include a widow and six children.

Still Time To Shop for Yule In Saugerties

Why not let others run around at the last minute fighting mobs and traffic jams as this year's Christmas shopping exodus builds to its harried climax? You can save yourself the trouble. Sound like a great idea? Well, then, think SAUGERTIES for Christmas.

Those who have been doing it for years know it's a good thought. And after casting your eyes over the glittering array of sparkling gift attractions contained in the pages of this shopping guide, you'll think it's the right idea, too.

Saugerties' merchants know how to help select the right gift for knowing givers — and the town's many shops offer pleasant surroundings in which to make those perfect choices needed for discerning friends and family. Saugerties is noted for having the pick of presents, from such quality gifts as stereo sets for dad and cashmere sweaters for mom, to low priced party frocks for little sister and even lower priced appliances and housewares for assorted grandmothers and aunts.

Those who shop in Saugerties for Christmas will find two much needed varieties in the Yule marketplace — friendliness and a wide choice of selections. Stores have been stocked with an eye to good taste and originality and distinctive wares fill the shelves.

If your shopping list calls for the best in fiction for Uncle Joe, something in the antique line for Cousin Fay, a crisp blouse for the office for Aunt Judy, and a token gift for the teenager next door with emphasis on hip humor, Saugerties has it. Gifts run the gamut from the finest in food and drink to fashion firsts for men and from jazz records and oil paintings to power tools and snowboots.

Saugerties is renowned for its concentration of attractive stores, many of them as well stocked as any on Fifth Avenue or Carnaby Street. They specialize in giving hearty cheer throughout the year but, during the month preceding Christmas, they fairly sparkle with surprises.

Gift wrapped lace nightgowns vie with perfume bottles, books of poetry, and games and toys to delight any child. Gifts to amuse and gifts to peruse line counters and shelves alike. Personalized service is just one of the many stellar attractions of shopping in Saugerties, and an unbelievable selection of specialties assures a Christmas holiday on a high note.

There can be no more perfect way to say "Merry Christmas" with all the warmth this holiday demands than by giving a present that says with its own eloquence that it was selected with thoughtfulness.

Saugerties' shops and stores provide the "personal route" to the holiday treasure chest and the pick of presents will be found among their displays. This year lavish your Christmas wrapping with a Saugerties seal.

Party at IOOF; Meet Tonight

The regular meeting of Queen Ulster Rebekah Lodge No. 34 was held recently in IOOF Temple on Main Street, Saugerties. There was a good attendance and refreshments were served by the Noble and Vice Grands and their supporters at tables decorated in keeping with the holiday season.

There will be a rehearsal of the degree team tonight, Nov. 30, and it is urged that all members make a special effort to be present at 7:30 p. m.

On Saturday evening, Dec. 2, at 8 p. m., the lodge will hold a card and bunco party in IOOF Temple on Main Street to which the public is invited. There will be prizes and refreshments for everyone.

At the next meeting on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, there will be an initiation of candidates, to which all Rebekahs are invited. All officers are requested to wear white.

Playing Santa to 'Invaders'

"I maybe do my share in help-in' to make fun of 'em," said an old-timer from out West Saugerties way last weekend,
'but I don't really mind seeing 'em come.'

Then with mirthful glee, he added, "They're sure enough good for laughs, and they brighten up the town considerable and bring in their share of business, I suppose."

He was talking about the men in red jackets whose two-door sports coupes had been very much in evidence around Saug-erties since the opening day of hunting season almost a week ago. With a three day's growth of beard, rumpled khaki trousers, knee-high rubber boots, and a red-and-black checked wool shirt, he could have passed for one of them to the undiscern-ing eye. In actuality, however, there is a fine line of distinction between the native Catskill hunter and the city men who leave their non-sportin' life wives and their elevator apartments behind to head for the hills in annual pursuit of deer, bear, pheasants and — more often than they'd care to admit — some unhappy farmer's horse or cow.

For one thing, the Blue Mountain or West Camp hinter can go home at night to a hot bath and a home cooked meal. The invading army grows more and more unkempt as the first few days of the season roll by and, muddy and footsore, they begin to look badly in need of laundering.

Still, as inept as most of them may be with a shotgun or rifle, they cannot resist the trek upstate to join the locals in making the valleys and hillsides sound like a video tape from the Asiatic front.

Saugertiesians have long since gotten used to them for the woods around this particular Hudson River town attract more armed city slicker hunters than most Catskill villages. As they slosh through the snow-covered fields by day and back to the motels, taverns and restaurants at night, the people and merchants of Saugerties settle down to playing Santa early to the invading horde.

At least, those who tend to business do — for the men of Saugerties, too, desert the family hearth to go hunting in the

Playing Santa to 'Invaders'

"I maybe do my share in helpin' to make fun of 'em," said an old-timer from out West Saugerties way last weekend, "but I don't really mind seeing 'em come."

Then with mirthful glee, he added, "They're sure enough good for laughs, and they brighten up the town considerable and bring in their share of business, I suppose."

He was talking about the men in red jackets whose two-door sports coupes had been very much in evidence around Saugerties since the opening day of hunting season almost a week ago. With a three day's growth of beard, rumpled khaki trousers, knee-high rubber boots, and a red-and-black checked wool shirt, he could have passed for one of them to the undiscerning eye. In actuality, however, there is a fine line of distinction between the native Catskill hunter and the city men who leave their non-sportin' life wives and their elevator apartments behind to head for the hills in annual pursuit of deer, bear, pheasants and — more often than they'd care to admit — some unhappy farmer's horse or cow.

For one thing, the Blue Mountain or West Camp hinter can go home at night to a hot bath and a home cooked meal. The invading army grows more and more unkempt as the first few days of the season roll by and, muddy and footsore, they begin to look badly in need of laundering.

Still, as inept as most of them may be with a shotgun or rifle, they cannot resist the trek upstate to join the locals in making the valleys and hill-sides sound like a video tape from the Asiatic front.

Saugertiesians have long since gotten used to them for the woods around this particular Hudson River town attract more armed city slicker hunters than most Catskill villages. As they slosh through the snow-covered fields by day and back to the motels, taverns and restaurants at night, the people and merchants of Saugerties settle down to playing Santa early to the invading horde.

At least, those who tend to business do — for the men of Saugerties, too, desert the family hearth to go hunting in the

Why Can't Every Day Be Christmas?

If Thanksgiving comes, can Christmas be far behind? Not in Saugerties, which takes great pride in decking itself out for the holidays. The town and village join forces to become one gala wonderland in the month preceding Yuletide, and many of those who have grown up here and wandered elsewhere want nothing more for Christmas than to be back in Saugerties for the holidays.

Local shoplights gleam with a special invitation for the season — transformed momentarily into muted visions behind magic glass — and the busy traffic along the streets adds its own symphony to the fantasy.

If there is something of a dreamlike quality in all this, the pace begins to quicken as Christmas Eve draws near. Then all Saugerties turns its thoughts to adding a special and very personal touch to the annual pageant.

Story Book Beauty

The story book beauty of glowing church spires and the doors below, flanked by frost-laden trees and pine-scented wreaths, serve once again as a backdrop for the renewal of the Christmas legend. Minor oratorios can be heard on the crisp night air as the traditional music of another joyous Noel is sung on records over shop loudspeakers and by church choirs and muffled and mittered carolers strolling from house to house.

Individual families, too, will lift their voices in song, as they honor the spirit of the season and gather 'round to trim their trees. The whole town comes alive to uncontained excitement with the arrival of bewhiskered Santas at parties sponsored by clubs and organizations in every hall and gathering place in the community. Sometimes the arrival of this right jolly old elf with a nose like a cherry is a deep, dark secret, carefully and jealously guarded. His once a year fairies and elves, though omnipresent inhabitants of the town for the rest of the year, are dedicated now to transforming childhood dreams into reality with creativity, mystery and mischief on this night of nights for every youngster.

In a very real sense, Christmas in Saugerties starts early. Already this year the Empire float has paid its annual visit and, wending its way through the streets last weekend, drew parade lovers and hundreds of delighted youngsters with its promise of a twinkley-eyed and rosy-cheeked St. Nick distributing goodies. Already Christmas sales have been held in local church rooms and vacant stores and Christmas parties, featuring traditional covered dish suppers and an exchange of gifts, are being planned for this week or next.

Saugerties takes special care to forget no one at Christmas. On that starlit night when Santa and his helpers thread their way (hopefully through vanilla-

Local Club Hears About Coast

The Saugerties Monday Club met recently at the home of its president, Mrs. Gordon Keeley. The paper for the afternoon was given by Mrs.

Kaufman who has lived for two years in San Francisco.

In part, Mrs. Kaufman said: "Peoples by Americans from other states in a massive, continuing migration, the West Coast has become the epitome of changing America. It has never been let alone long enough to have become static."

"In the minds of many of the millions who have moved to California, Oregon, and Washington, the coast is like a large country that has come into being within the last generation or two. Settlement and growth have been so rapid that to some of the newcomers the region appears to have been born full-grown — but with complications."

"The citizen of the West Coast still seeks to wrest the land from nature. Full of hope and industry, he dreams of building a better world in this still fresh and malleable region. The exuberance of his dream affects all who come to the West Coast, the drama of the western setting makes the realization of the dream seem a possibility."

It was announced that this week's meeting would be held in the community rooms of the Saugerties Savings Bank. An illustrated lecture was scheduled by a representative of the New York Telephone Company from Albany.

Each member was urged to invite a guest.

Pupils participating were: Donald Aldrich, Karen Blossom, Karen Cacchillo, Thomas

Carpino, Carlton Creamer, Clifford David, John Driscoll, Megan Ehrmann, Laura Eide, Nancy Fabiano, Louis Ferraro, Nancy Harrison, Karen Homan, Frederick Huber, Mark Lagano and Patricia McBride.

Ballet Brightens Holiday Scene

The Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company, which recently hosted its annual "Invitational Ballet" at Poughkeepsie High School to a capacity audience of more than 1,400 persons, will present a full-length program in Saugerties over the holidays.

The company, which has appeared here previously to wide acclaim, was invited back by the Saugerties Jaycees and, happily, the troupe accepted.

Representatives from the local Jaycees attended the recent "Invitational Ballet" and returned to tell all who would listen that they were exceedingly impressed with the Mid-Hudson Ballet Company's performance in "The Little Match Girl," as choreographed by Estelle and Alfonso, artistic directors.

Ballerinas and sets will travel up the river for a performance in Saugerties at Saugerties High School on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 10, says Walter Biscardi, president of the regional ballet company, after clearing the journey with the board of directors.

Sad Fairy Tale

"The Little Match Girl" ballet is based on the fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen and tells the sad story of a poor little girl who tries desperately to sell her matches on a freezing New Year's Eve. Unable to do so,

Why Can't Every

laced snowflakes) to deliver holiday baskets of cheer to the lonely, the less fortunate and the confined, the multi-colored village and town is Christmas personified.

A Spangled Scene

Towering Christmas trees with hundreds of spangled lights will overlook the scene where stockings await filling. Among these will be the memory trees which have become a unique local tradition. Sponsored by the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens, they are lighted each year at the C. A. Lynch Hose Company on Hill Street and the Ellen Russel Finger Home on Uster Avenue in memory of loved ones and friends. Each bulb is given in the name of someone who has known and enjoyed the past beauty of Christmas here.

The special fairyland flavored atmosphere of Saugerties at Christmas is attributable to many things. To a whole town working together in the spirit of the season . . . to teenagers celebrating at a holiday dance, their rock and roll as much a part of the scene as "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." To Christmas cards delivered daily in the mail by the heavily laden postman . . . to the sightseers and shoppers from out of town and in town chiming that bring a quickening response . . . to the bright lights that have been stretched across the streets by the Chamber of Commerce. To the Legion ladies who never fail to remember the veterans, and to the Auxiliary women who journey to the Firemen's Home at Hudson to deliver gifts to Saugerties men who now live there.

Saugerties itself is an unparalleled holiday show . . . and it owes its success to the joy and enthusiasm lent to its support by the people of Saugerties. Whether this will be your first or fiftieth Christmas in Saugerties, it promises to be gala, bright and merry. The holiday tempo will be radiant with warmth . . . for Christmas is Saugerties' special time of the year . . . A time when the friendly appeal of the village and town visibly increases, striking a responsive chord among all within its range. A time when the festive air of the season is irresistible to young and old alike as they find themselves caught up in its mood . . . And a time when the workaday world seems far removed from the scene — as most of us would agree it should.

No sooner does she do so than a vision appears—a vision of a warm stove—but it quickly fades from view as the flame dies out. Again she strikes a match and again a vision appears. This time the hungry girl imagines she sees a family scene in which the children are enjoying a wonderful holiday dinner. But this vision also fades and, hast-

(Continued from Page 3) first few days of the season. Sporting store supply owners man their shops and mothers keep their children inside but, if reliable figures were available, they would probably show that local hunters number as many or more than outside hunters.

Hunting season has a pronounced effect on Saugerties. Males literally desert the streets in the daytime, some shops post "Gone Hunting" signs, and older teenaged boys suddenly find the lure of the woods more compelling than the call of the classroom. Local industries learned long ago that vacation schedules have to be adjusted to the season and more than one company's work force is considerably reduced as office and production employees alike take to the woods with sleeping bags and a supply of canned stew.

Christmas Not A 'Sometime' Thing Locally

The spirit of Christmas is in existence on a year around basis and is visible in most of the endeavors undertaken by both the Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW, and the American Legion Lamouree Hackett, Unit 72. The work done by the Ladies Auxiliaries of these organizations for hospitalized veterans and to aid various other worthwhile and charitable causes from January through December proves this.

There can be no doubt, however, that the pace visibly accelerates during the holiday season now upon us. For the VFW — this year as every year — Christmas really begins in mid-November. One of the first Christmas sales in the community each year is the one held by the Ladies Auxiliary of the local post.

The 1967 edition offered something novel in the way of Yule gifts. Quick portrait sketches were executed by a visiting Bearsville artist, who drew her subjects in 15 minute sittings. The results, a majority of which were of teenagers and children, will find their way beneath many a Christmas tree this year to become treasured works of art in the family album. It is at this sale, too, that some of the more colorful decorations seen later in the season in local homes are purchased. Original and unique tree ornaments and centerpieces are best sellers here, as are such gift items as handmade aprons and stockings for wearing and filling.

Profits from this sale are used in the Auxiliary's hospital which is important all year long but especially so at Christmas. This is the time when thoughts turn to the veterans who are patients at Castle Point Hospital. After helping with the public dedication ceremonies of three new wards at that hospital recently, the Saugerties VFW Auxiliary is planning two more visits there shortly, both aimed at making Christmas merrier for patients.

Christmas Games

A Christmas games event is planned for Dec. 13 and the Saugerties group will provide a large amount of candy and goodie-filled Santas for the day's activities. A week later, on Dec. 19, a busload of Saugertiesians will travel to the hospital again for a hospital-wide Yule party that evening. A large number of gifts are now being collected and wrapped for this event. Any local resident wishing to donate gifts may do so.

Another holiday fund raising project is the annual VFW trip to New York City, slated this year for Saturday, Dec. 9. The trip, which will see the bus leaving the center of the village at 7 a. m. and returning from Manhattan at 10 p. m., allows local residents a full day in the metropolis for sightseeing, theatre going and shopping. Reservations are being accepted until Dec. 1 and all tickets sold will again aid in the auxiliary's hospital and rehabilitation work.

The American Legion Auxiliary, too, does its fair share in upholding the traditions of Christmas. At their own Christmas party, planned this year for Thursday, Dec. 14, at the Legion Home, there will be an exchange of gifts and a covered dish supper.

Tuesday, Dec. 5, is the day auxiliary members have set aside to work at the Albany Veterans Hospital. The local group will spend time helping to select and wrap gifts for veterans. These will be sent, at no expense to the veterans, to friends and relatives elsewhere.

While Christmas is a Santa-centered scene with visions of sugarplums for most of us, to the VFW and American Legion . . . it is holiday esprit as many days out of the year as possible.

IT'S NOT TOO EARLY for little Cris and Pam Mullery to daydream about Christmas Eve. Hanging on to a plush Santa doll for good luck, they cast a speculative look at pretty frocks, dolls and teddy bears in a Saugerties department store. If Cris and Pam have their way, at least some of these goodies will end up under their family tree (Freeman photo by Haines).

Nursery School Dinner Friday

Although the fare (spaghetti) may not appear Christmasy at first glance, the spirit at tomorrow evening's fund raising dinner for the Saugerties Community Day Nursery School is definitely attuned to the season.

The family style meal Friday will feature spaghetti and meat balls, served up in the parish hall of the Saugerties Reformed Church on John Street, from 5 to 7 p. m. Tickets may be purchased at the church, at Eddie's Delicatessen, or from any of the parents of children attending the nursery school.

No finer gift could go to these youngsters than the support of the community in attending the dinner, since all funds raised from the Italian fete will be used to purchase equipment and to meet financial obligations of the school. During the dinner hours, diners may visit the nursery school, which will be open for inspection—and Miss May Evans, director of pupil personnel of Saugerties Central Schools, will be present to answer questions about the local day nursery and its value to pre-school education.

IT'S NOT TOO EARLY for little Cris and Pam Mullery to daydream about Christmas Eve. Hanging on to a plush Santa doll for good luck, they cast a speculative look at pretty frocks, dolls and teddy bears in a Saugerties department store. If Cris and Pam have their way, at least some of these goodies will end up under their family tree (Freeman photo by Haines).

Nursery School Dinner Friday

Although the fare (spaghetti) may not appear Christmasy at first glance, the spirit at tomorrow evening's fund raising dinner for the Saugerties Community Day Nursery School is definitely attuned to the season.

The family style meal Friday will feature spaghetti and meat balls, served up in the parish hall of the Saugerties Reformed Church on John Street, from 5 to 7 p. m. Tickets may be purchased at the church, at Eddie's Delicatessen, or from any of the parents of children attending the nursery school.
